DEMENTIA: 13 TIPS FOR CAREGIVERS - DEMENTIA: 13 TIPS FOR CAREGIVERS by Diseases Simplified 2,297 views 3 years ago 2 minutes, 46 seconds - Dementia, is a difficult condition and now more than ever, families taking care of their loved ones with dementia, need support.

Keep communicating in a kind and gentle way. Even if the meaning of your words aren't understood, your emotion and intent make a difference.

Give encouragement. Focus on what people still can do. Don't mention what's been lost.

When someone fails at a task, hold on to your empathy and keep front and center the person's dignity

Clothing: Lay out an outfit each day Choose elastic waist pants without buttons or zippers.

A pocket sized notebook to write things down can be very useful.

Giving people a choice between option A or option B is better than giving an open-ended choice.

FIND JOY. Listen to music. Do art projects. Go for walks outdoors.

Join support groups, find adult day centers.

Often people are happier and better off in a living facility than living at home sitting alone staring at a TV all day.

Caring for dementia in later stages is hard in their home, and often the person with dementia may have better quality of life in a living facility.

Meet people in the world where they are. Avoid correcting them or attempting to re-ground them in reality. This causes stress, anxiety, and confusion.

It's unlikely to improve their function. More likely it will make things worse. HAVE PATIENCE.

When someone asks the SAME QUESTION or say the same thing OVER AND OVER, rather than just answering

If with aggressive behaviors, STAY CALM. Often withdrawing and moving to another room will help.

Speak calmly. Hold the

Avoid startling or surprising someone. Aggressive behaviors are sometimes a normal defensive reflex.
