In 1960, we were the first to conduct the complete excavation of an ancient shipwreck on the seabed, a Bronze Age wreck just off Cape Gelidonya on Turkey's south coast.

Our goal during this period was the complete excavation of shipwrecks and the recovery of their cargos.

With such unique discoveries from beneath the waves we hoped to rewrite history, or at least gain a better understanding of ancient seafaring, ships, trade goods, and long-distance exchange networks.
