You are called to help resuscitate an infant with severe symptomatic bradycardia associated with respiratory distress. The bradycardia persists despite establishment of an effective airway, oxygenation, and ventilation. There is no heart block present. Which of the following is the first drug you should administer?

General assessment of a 2-year-old female reveals her to be alert with mild breathing difficulty during inspiration. On primary assessment, she makes high-pitched inspiratory sounds (mild stridor) when agitated. Her oxygen level is 92% on room air. Lung auscultation reveals transmitted upper airway sounds with adequate distal breath sounds bilaterally. Which of the following is the most appropriate initial therapy intervention for this child?

You enter a room to perform a general assessment of a previously stable 10-year-old male and find him unresponsive and apneic. A code is called and bag-mask ventilation is performed with 100% oxygen. The cardiac monitor shows a wide-complex tachycardia. The boy has no detectable pulses. You deliver an unsynchronized shock with 2 Joules per kilogram and resume immediate CPR beginning with compressions. A team member had established 1.0. access, so you give a dose of epinephrine. At the next rhythm check, persistent Ventricular Fibrillation is present. You administer a 4 Joules per kilogram shock and resume CPR. Based on the PALS Pulseless Arrest Algorithm, what is the next drug to administer when CPR is restarted?

Parents of a 1-year-old female phoned the Emergency Response System when they picked up their daughter from the baby-sitter. Paramedics perform a general assessment revealing an obtunded infant with irregular breathing, bruises over the abdomen, abdominal distention, and cyanosis. Assisted bag-mask ventilation with 100% oxygen is initiated. The heart rate is 36 per minute, peripheral pulses cannot be palpated, and central pulses are barely palpable. Chest compressions are started with a 15:2 compression-to-ventilation ratio. In the emergency department the infant is intubated and ventilated with 100% oxygen, and LV. access is established. The heart rate is now up to 150 beats minute but there are weak central pulses and no distal pulses. Systolic blood pressure is 74. Of the following, which would be most useful in management of this infant?

An infant with a history of vomiting and diarrhea arrives by ambulance. During your primary assessment the infant responds only to painful stimulation. The upper airway is patent, the respiratory rate is 40 with good bilateral breath sounds, and 100% oxygen is being administered. The infant has cool extremities, weak pulses, and a capillary refill time of more than 5 seconds. The infant's systolic blood pressure is 85, and bedside glucose level is 30. Which of the following is the most appropriate treatment to provide for this infant?

General assessment of a 9-year-old male with increased work of breathing. reveals the boy to be agitated and leaning forward on the bed with obvious respiratory distress. You administer 100% oxygen by nonrebreathing mask. The patient is speaking in short phrases and tells you that he has asthma but does not carry an inhaler. He has nasal flaring, severe suprasternal and intercostal retractions, and decreased air movement with prolonged expiratory time and wheezing. His oxygen level is 92% on a nonrebreathing mask. What is the next medical therapy to provide to this patient?

An 8-month-old male is brought to the emergency department for evaluation of severe diarrhea and dehydration. In the E.D. the child becomes unresponsive and pulseless. You shout for help and start CPR at a compression rate of 100 per minute and a compression-to-ventilation ratio of 30:2. Another provider arrives, at which point you switch to 2. rescuer CPR with a compression-to-ventilation ratio of 15:2. The cardiac monitor shows Ventricular Fibrillation.

General assessment of a 10-month-old male in the emergency department reveals a lethargic pale infant with slow respirations. You begin assisted ventilation with a bag-mask device using 100% oxygen. On primary assessment heart rate is 38, central pulses are weak but distal pulses cannot be palpated, systolic blood pressure is 60, and capillary refill is 4 seconds. During your assessment a colleague places the child on a cardiac monitor, and you observe a bradycardic rhythm. The rhythm remains unchanged despite ventilation with 100% oxygen. What are your next management steps?

A 3-year-old unresponsive, apneic child is brought to the emergency department. Emergency personnel report that the child became unresponsive as they arrived at the hospital. The child is receiving CPR, including bag-mask ventilation with 100% oxygen and chest compressions at a rate of 100 per minute. Compressions and ventilations are being coordinated at a ratio of 15:2. You confirm that apnea is present and that ventilation is producing bilateral breath sounds and chest expansion while a colleague confirms absent pulses. Cardiac monitor shows Ventricular Tachycardia. General assessment of a 10-year-old male shows him to be unresponsive. You shout for help, check breathing, find he is apneic, and give 2 breaths. After finding that he is pulseless, you begin cycles of compressions and ventilations with a compression rate of 100 per minute and compression-to-ventilation ratio of 30:2. A colleague arrives and places the child on a cardiac monitor, revealing Ventricular Fibrillation.

A child becomes unresponsive in the emergency department and is not breathing. You provide ventilation with 100% oxygen. You are uncertain if a faint pulse is present. What is your next action? You are preparing to use a manual defibrillator and paddles in the pediatric setting. When would it be most appropriate to use the smaller "pediatric" sized paddles for shock delivery?

A 7-year-old boy is found unresponsive, apneic, and pulseless. CPR is ongoing. The child is intubated and vascular access is established. The heart monitor reveals an organized rhythm, but a pulse check reveals no palpable pulses. Effective ventilations and compressions are resumed, and an initial I.V. dose of epinephrine is administered. Which of the following therapies should you perform next?

You are evaluating an irritable 6-year-old girl with mottled color. On primary assessment she is febrile with a temperature of 40 degrees Celsius or 104 degrees Fahrenheit. Her extremities are cold with a capillary refill of 5 seconds. Distal pulses are absent and central pulses are weak. Heart rate is 180 per minute, respiratory rate is 45 breaths per minute, and a systolic blood pressure is 98. Which of the following most accurately describes the categorization of this child's condition using the terminology taught in the PALS Provider Course?

An 18-month-old child presents with a 1-week history of cough and runny nose. You perform a general assessment, which reveals a toddler responsive only to painful stimulation with slow respirations and diffuse cyanosis. You begin a primary assessment and find that the child's respiratory rate has fallen from 65 breaths per minute to 10. Severe inspiratory intercostal retractions are present. The heart rate is 160, oxygen level is 65% on room air, and the capillary refill is less than 2 seconds. Which of the following is the most appropriate immediate treatment for this toddler?

You are supervising another healthcare provider who is inserting an intraosseous needle into an infant's tibia. Which of the following signs should you tell the provider is the best indication of successful insertion of a needle into the bone marrow cavity?

#24: A pale and obtunded 3-year-old child with a history of diarrhea is brought to the hospital. Primary assessment reveals a respiratory rate of 45 breaths per minute with good breath sounds bilaterally. Heart rate is 150 beats per minute, systolic blood pressure is 90, and the oxygen level is 92% in room air. Capillary refill is 5 seconds and peripheral pulses are weak. After placing the child on a nonbreathing face mask with 100% oxygen and obtaining vascular access, which of the following is the most appropriate immediate treatment for this child?

Adult males did not simply stand up and speak. They needed authorization to exercise public voice. Why should anyone listen to them? In his first four chapters, Luke achieves this for Jesus, a process we access in two ways. In part 1, we examine how Luke establishes this by employing social-science models, which inform our understanding beyond what typical commentaries can achieve. We begin this by considering Luke 1–4 in terms of the social-science communications model, which exposes how God, as Sender-of-Senders, repeatedly sends Messages about Jesus, which cumulatively establish him with a public role and status, and so with public voice. Jesus' ethos can be described by considering him in terms of typical group-oriented personality and by means of rituals of status elevation and confirmation, which dramatize his worthiness to have public voice. Part 2 consists of rhetorical materials that inform us on how typical beginnings began. Ancient rhetoric also taught formal ways to construct a proper ethos, both for authors and those about whom they spoke. Finally, Luke himself needs a proper ethos to warrant our acceptance of him as a reliable narrator, which he achieves in his prologue. Jesus deserves public voice.

Students whose first language is not English are the fastest-growing group in public schools in all regions of the United States. Almost 10 million children between the ages of five and 17 live in the homes and communities in which a language other than English is spoken and presently most schools in the U.S. are under-educating many English learners. The achievement of Hispanic students needs to improve dramatically over the next five years and this book describes the cornerstone elements for bringing about this change. The initial chapter introduces direct instruction to be used with reading and literacy programs. Chapters 2 and 3 provide excellent review of the literature in language development and address developing language instruction, listening, and speaking with Spanish-speaking students and offers what a comprehensive language development program should look like. Chapter 4 reviews academic language and literacy instruction while the next addresses the components of instruction in Spanish. Chapter 6 offers lesson plan suggestions for Spanish-speaking students, while the following two sections discuss components that transfer and do not transfer in Spanish to English reading instruction. Chapter 9 reviews English language development and provides lesson plans for implementing SDAIE programs. Finally, Chapter 10 discusses two-way bilingual immersion and shares actual classroom schedules and lessons. This unique text will help in the preparation of primary grade teachers throughout the U.S. so that they may be successful with Hispanic students entering the public schools with little or no English background. It will also be a useful tool for school districts' staff development in addressing school improvement goals for increasing the achievement of Hispanic students.
