Translation Studies: how did it emerge and how has it evolved in the last decades?

You have been a professional translator, you have worked in academia, you have, perhaps, done both things at the same time, at a certain point; how has the role of the translator as an individual and as a collective changed?

Do you believe that this expansion of the discipline –translation not just being interdisciplinary but standing on its own two feet– has caused an atomisation in the last few years? Are translators now becoming specialised in such a way that they create their own subdiscipline?

You have led various European and international projects related to translation. Going back to that suspicion against translation as a discipline, separate from any other thing; how were you capable of proving that there was translation beyond linguistics and that there could be a social impact and a relevant policy side to it?

Where do you see translation going in the future?
