The Figure of the Buddha Appears To Ambedkar as a Revolutionary Figure as a Figure for Rejecting and Questioning Caste Hierarchy and Cause Base Inequality 2 , 500 Years Ago Already Right and Who Created this New Religion Based on the Desire for a New Kind of Community Right Which Would Which Would Accept Men and Women Which Would Accept Members of Different Social Classes and It Was Founded by this Prince Who Gave Up His His Kingdom Who Gave Up His Family and Who Reinvented Himself as a Kind of Brand New Person a New Kind of Rational Figure in the Very Depths of Indian History That Really Not Be into Ambedkar

Know that the Foundations of of the System Are the Four Noble Truths So-Called the First of Which Is that We Need To Accept that There Is Suffering in the World Right There Is a Fact of Suffering There Is the Acknowledgment of Suffering There Is a Path To Try To Address and Deal with Our Mortality with Our Suffering and Finally There Is the Capacity of Humans through Rational Reflection Right and through a Realignment of Their Relationship with Their Own Body with Other Humans with the Community and with any Kind of Larger Power Out There There Is the Capacity To Liberate Ourselves from this Endless Cycle of Mortality and Suffering

And Finally There Is the Capacity of Humans through Rational Reflection Right and through a Realignment of Their Relationship with Their Own Body with Other Humans with the Community and with any Kind of Larger Power Out There There Is the Capacity To Liberate Ourselves from this Endless Cycle of Mortality and Suffering Right so You Begin with the Idea of Suffering and You Have a Promise of Liberation and Omega Worked with that but He Wanted To Understand that Suffering in Terms of a Social Suffering Collective Suffering a Suffering That Follows from Being Members of an Unequal Society Inequality Produces a Peculiar Form of Collective Suffering Which Affects all of Us and Therefore Entering into Buddhism Is Not Just a Personal Choice of Religious Conversion It Wasn't Enough To Have Affirmative Action There Was Still Something More That Needed To Be Done before Indians Began To Understand that They Could Not Treat Fellow Humans in the Way that Ballots Were Treated but They Could Not Fundamentally Hide behind Their Acceptance of Diversity and Difference and Actually Continue To Practice Hierarchy and Inequality towards Others Who Are Different from You Now You Know in There Is Very Very Diverse We Call the Most Diverse Country in the World It Is Very Clear It's Also Very Inclusive of Traditionally that May Be Changing Now and You Learn To Live with Difference Everybody Is Different from Everybody Else They'Re the Most Languages Spoken in India in any Place in the World There Are the Most Religion Practiced Ananya Vajpeyi on Hindu Nationalism - Ananya Vajpeyi on Hindu Nationalism by Foreign Affairs 13,099 views 9 years ago 16 minutes - Justin Vogt, deputy managing editor of Foreign Affairs, sits down with Ananya Vajpeyi, fellow at the Center for Developing ...
