Q. Your manager asks you to complete a task, but you think it's impossible to achieve. What would you do and say?

I would just go ahead and do the task to the best of my ability.

I believe if you start off with a negative mindset of 'I can't do this, then you're already setting yourself up to fail.

Q. If you could change one thing about your personality, what would it

Q. How do you view change? Do you like change, or are you more of a "If it ain't broke, don't fix it!" type of person?

In order for a business or organization to succeed, especially in the modern world where things change all of the time, it's imperative to have staff who embrace change with a positive attitude

Q. Describe a time when you missed an important deadline at work?

To be honest, I have never missed an important deadline at work. I am naturally an organized person who always plans meticulously for all tasks.

I will always think ahead to make sure I have the resources and expertise to complete a task properly, whilst also thinking about any potential barriers that might come up that would prevent me from meeting a deadline

Q. What irritates you the most at work?

However, if I had to choose one thing that is most likely to irritate me the most, it would be when I am waiting for external suppliers or stakeholders to come back to me, especially when the completion of my own project or task is dependent on their response.
