Stay in Luxury Amongst South Africa's Unique Floral Kingdom | National Geographic - Stay in Luxury Amongst South Africa's Unique Floral Kingdom | National Geographic by National Geographic 38,313 views 5 years ago 2 minutes, 43 seconds - About National Geographic: National Geographic is, the world's premium destination for science, exploration, and adventure.

Africa's magnificent southwestern coast is blanketed in a dry scrub known as fynbos.

From these unremarkable bushes, exotic proteas and ericas bloom.

With some 9000 species, South Africa's fynbos, make ...

the Cape Floristic Region, a UNESCO World Heritage site.

Just a few miles up the coast from Africa's southernmost tip, Grootbos Private Nature Reserve harbors some 765 fynbos species, some of which were discovered on the property.

These hills at the edge of the sea, once a patchwork of farms, were painstakingly returned to native vegetation by the owners of Grootbos.

They can explore huge prehistoric caves on the shores of Walker Bay and spot the marine "big five": southern right whales, African penguins, great white sharks, fur seals, and dolphins.

Meals are sourced from a horticulture school on the reserve where locals learn organic farming and life skills.

And dinner is served with a stunning sunset view, or surrounded by the gnarled trees of an ancient milkwood forest.
