Policy issues in the Education and Training Policy (ETP) 2014
 The Organisation, Structure, Content, and Implementation of Education and Training Policy

(a) The Policy does not include national education goals, aims, and objectives of education for each education subsector.

(b) The Policy provides general statements in addressing education sectors, instead of addressing individual levels and sub-sectors of education.

c The implementation framework is weak and lacks legal support. See d-g in the report

Pedagogical Structure for Formal Education

a The linear structure of formal education does not depict alternative pathways and one year of preschool learning beginning at age 5 provided in the ETP 2014 does not offer adequate preparation time for primary school.

The statements on the use of both Kiswahili and English as the language of instruction across school levels allows misinterpretation in implementation.

(c) The Policy does not provide for the promotion of civic competencies at all levels of education.

#03 Family, National Values and Moral Development
 intellectual stimulation, psycho-social support, enculturation, moral upbringing, and guidance.

(6) National values (Tunu za Taifa) are not emphasised at all levels of education.

(d) The Policy is silent on education of Religion as a school subject.

#04 Curriculum Development, Change/ Reform/ Innovation for Basic and Secondary Education

(a) The Policy does not clearly identify the roadmap for curriculum development, revision/ change/reform.

(6) The guidance on curriculum is not well conceptualised and competence-based curriculum is not implemented as intended.

#05 Curriculum, Teaching and Learning Materials

(a) The policy does not provide clear guideline to align textbooks with the competency-based curriculum

(6) There is no clear framework for guiding preparations of textbook authors.

(c) The single textbook policy does not address the problem of textbooks in schools.
