The Ultimate Wedding Reception Book

If you're planning to hold your wedding reception at home, in your village hall or even in a local barn there's a lot more to think about than if you go the hotel route. You'll need to source and book the marquee and contact hire companies for tables and chairs, crockery and cutlery, table linen, loos, refrigeration, bar facilities, a generator - and more. The good news is that a wedding reception at home can be much more intimate and personal and you are able to be more flexible in terms of timing. You are also better able to control the cost - and with the average wedding totting up at around GBP17,000 in today's market, that's an important consideration. With this book you'll be able to event manage the day yourself so that all the details are covered and everything runs smoothly with the minimum of stress. Alongside all the more general advice and tips you'll find information on: A* Preparing a budget and getting quotations for the marquee or village hall. A* Choosing the menu, including a selection of sample menus. A* If you're cooking yourself, how to prepare and shop for the chosen menus. A* Buying alcohol, planning the bar and finding staff to man it. A* How to hire equipment and gauge quantities of plates, cutlery, serving dishes, and tablecloths. A* How to find good staff and instruct them on their duties. A* Organising the music and ensuring sufficient electrical power. A* Planning the big tidy up afterwards! AUTHOR BIOG: In her role as professional caterer Carol Godsmark has event managed and catered for many home-based wedding receptions. She is also a journalist, food writer, author, restaurant critic and consultant, and editor of Savour, The Guild of Food Writers' publication. Born in Canada, she discovered food culture when moving to Europe aged 8. She now lives in West Sussex. CONTENTS: Acknowledgements Preface 1. Planning your wedding 2. Planning your budget 3. Compiling the guest list 4. Setting the stage - choosing, equipping and decorating your venue 5. Planning the entertainment for your wedding 6. Planning the menu 7. Doing your own catering 8. Special event planners know the importance of having a Master of Ceremonies. Someone needs to orchestrate the occasion and serve as a kind of host in welcoming guests, introducing speakers, and guiding people through the program. A wedding reception has the same requirements. It needs structure and leadership -- which is exactly what a good Master of Ceremonies can provide. Here's a handy little book to help the wedding emcee through every step in that process. It's an invaluable guide for the Best Man, a close friend or family member, a professional Disc Jockey or anyone else asked to serve as the Master of Ceremonies or make a toast at a wedding reception. It includes a wealth of advice on how to plan the reception for best results, tips on how to write and deliver a compelling toast, proven methods to deal with nerves and stage-fright, suggestions on humor (how to keep it clean but funny), ways to increase presentation power, plus a compendium of crowd-pleasing toasts/quotes.

The Ultimate Wedding Reception Book

If you're planning to hold your wedding reception at home, in your village hall or even in a local barn there's a lot more to think about than if you go the hotel route. You'll need to source and book the marquee and contact hire companies for tables and chairs, crockery and cutlery, table linen, loos, refrigeration, bar facilities, a generator - and more. The good news is that a wedding reception at home can be much more intimate and personal and you are able to be more flexible in terms of timing. You are also better able to control the cost - and with the average wedding totting up at around GBP17,000 in today's market, that's an important consideration. With this book you'll be able to event manage the day yourself so that all the details are covered and everything runs smoothly with the minimum of stress. Alongside all the more general advice and tips you'll find information on: A* Preparing a budget and getting quotations for the marquee or village hall. A* Choosing the menu, including a selection of sample menus. A* If you're cooking yourself, how to prepare and shop for the chosen menus. A* Buying alcohol, planning the bar and finding staff to man it. A * How to hire equipment and gauge quantities of plates, cutlery, serving dishes, and tablecloths. A* How to find good staff and instruct them on their duties. A* Organising the music and ensuring sufficient electrical power. A* Planning the big tidy up afterwards! AUTHOR BIOG: In her role as professional caterer Carol Godsmark has event managed and catered for many home-based wedding receptions. She is also a journalist, food writer, author, restaurant critic and consultant, and editor of Savour, The Guild of Food Writers' publication. Born in Canada, she discovered food culture when moving to Europe aged 8. She now lives in West Sussex. CONTENTS: Acknowledgements Preface 1. Planning your wedding 2. Planning your budget 3. Compiling the guess list 4. Setting the stage - choosing, equipping and decorating your venue 5. Planning the entertainment for your wedding 6. Planning the menu 7. Doing your own catering 8. Special event planners know the importance of having a Master of Ceremonies. Someone needs to orchestrate the occasion and serve as a kind of host in welcoming guests, introducing speakers, and guiding people through the program. A wedding reception has the same requirements. It needs structure and leadership -- which is exactly what a good Master of Ceremonies can provide. Here's a handy little book to help the wedding emcee through every step in that process. It's an invaluable guide for the Best Man, a close friend or family member, a professional Disc Jockey or anyone else asked to serve as the Master of Ceremonies or make a toast at a wedding reception. It includes a wealth of advice on how to plan the reception for best results, tips on how to write and deliver a compelling toast, proven methods to deal with nerves and stage-fright, suggestions on humor (how to keep it clean but funny), ways to increase presentation power, plus a compendium of crowd-pleasing toasts/quotes.
