And that Chrome Was Really the Was a Strategic Material That Was Important to the War Effort so You Had To Keep the Roads in Good Shape so You Get that Ore Out from the from the Mines up to the Processors in or to the Railroads for Shipment so There Was some Work Going On There There Was that Work on that Bridge I Just Showed You a Photo of but Importantly What's Going On during the War Is an Awful Lot of Planning for What's GonNa Happen after the War the Highway Commission and the Highway Department Fully Expected To Be Getting a Lot More Money When the War Was Completed

So They Were Making Plans That Would Have a Long-Lasting Impact on How Our Transportation System Developed Afterwards and How We'Re Using Them Today in 1944 They Pretty Much Established What the Interstate System Was Going To Be Here in Montana All the Interstates That Were Traveling Today Were First Plotted Out and Routed in 1944 and So during the 1950's Most of the Federal Funds Were Going to those Routes

All the Interstates That Were Traveling Today Were First Plotted Out and Routed in 1944 and So during the 1950's Most of the Federal Funds Were Going to those Routes and Then of Course in 1956 and Afterwards That Was Building Entirely Doing Entirely New Highways along those Routes That Have Been Established in 1944 but There Was an Awful Lot of Road Construction Going On in Other Places As Well and the Reason Was that Most of the Highways and Bridges That Have Been Built during the 1930s Had Been Allowed To Kind Of Deteriorate

But There Was an Awful Lot of Road Construction Going On in Other Places As Well and the Reason Was that Most of the Highways and Bridges That Have Been Built during the 1930s Had Been Allowed To Kind Of Deteriorate during the War and So They Reinitiated a Brand New Highway Program in 1945 That Upgraded that System and Replaced a Lot of the Bridges That Had Become Obsolete and Built Better Alignments for Highways if You Drive Down to Townsend You Can Definitely See Where the Original Highway 12 Alignment Was Next to the Existing Alignment the Best Examples I Think or One of the Best Examples Is between Wolf Creek and Augusta

And that Fit in Very Nicely with that Post-World War li Building Boom Economic Boom That Swept the Country One Thing That's Going To Come out of that Is Tourism Really Booms in Montana after the War As Well so You Have Even More People Coming to Montana and a Lot of the Reason Roads Were Built the Way They Were Is because Commercial Trucking Had Also Become More Important to the Economy so There's a Lot of Things Going On after World War Two That Really Have a Big Impact on on Our Road System but Fred Robinson Bridge Completed in 1959 Provided the First Connection between Lewistown and Malta and the Only Bridge between Wolf Point and Fort Benton ... in the Historical Society, for a Little while They Have To ...

I Mean It's Still a Live System We'Re Still Making Changes to It and We Can Also See the Impact That that System Has Had on Communities like Helena You Know as They Grow Out towards the Interchanges Instead of Being Focused More towards the Downtown Areas so It's and They Weren't Built for Military Reasons Which I Thought Was Pretty Interesting I Had Read into Several Places that It Was Built Primarily for Commercial Truck Traffic and Not So Much for the Military although They Have To Meet Military Standards so They Can Move Equipment along Them So with that I Was Always Told that You Should End a Presentation with a Dog
