Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts (1) We have not used OCR (Optical Character Recognition), as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. (2) In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images, so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy.

Excerpt from The Religious System of the Amazulu: Izinyanga Zokubula; Or, Divination, as Existing Among the Amazulu, in Their Own Words, With a Translation Into English, and Notes This account is, however, a promise of renovation through death. The New Zealand legend again may be compared, where we meet with rather a foreshadowing of redemption through One destroying death by passing through it, than an account of the cause of death entering into the world. Maui is made liable to death by some accidental omission of a part of the baptismal ritual, - a cause as trivial as the delay of the chameleon, or the false message of the hare. The Religious System of the Amazulu

Although it doesn't contain any sacred texts or give details of religious ceremonies, this book is still interesting as an account of answers given by someone from the Zulu tribe. Extremely heavy with footnotes, this is a purely English translation (in the original book, the Zulu is presented next to the English). For whatever reason, the end of the book cuts off mid sentence. This is not an error, but apparently the way the book was printed.
