Work in the 21st Century

The faking of personality tests in a selection context has been perceived as somewhat of a nuisance variable, and largely ignored, or glossed over by the academic literature. Instead of examining the phenomenon many researchers have ignored its existence, or trivialized the impact of faking on personality measurement. The present volume is a much needed, timely corrective to this attitude. In a wide range of chapters representing different philosophical and empirical approaches, the assembled authors demonstrate the courage to tackle this important and difficult topic head-on, as it deserves to be. The writers of these chapters identify two critical concerns with faking. First, if people fake their responses to personality tests, the resulting scores and the inferences drawn from them might become invalid. For example, people who fake their responses by describing themselves as diligent and prompt might earn better conscientiousness scores, and therefore be hired for jobs requiring this trait that in fact they might not perform satisfactorily. Second, the dishonesty of the faker might itself be a problem, separate from its effect on a particular score. Someone who lies on a pre-employment test might also lie about the hours he or she works, or how much cash is in the till at the end of the shift. Worse, these two problems might exacerbate each other: a dishonest applicant might get higher scores on the traits the employer desires through his or her lying, whereas the compulsively honest applicant might get low scores as an ironic penalty for being honest. Outcomes like these harm employers and applicants alike. The more one delves into the complexities of faking, as the authors of the chapters in this volume do so thoroughly and so well, the more one will recognize that this seemingly specialized topic ties directly to more general issues in psychology. One of these is test validity. The bottom-line question about any test score, faked or not, is whether it will predict the behaviors and outcomes that it is designed to predict. As Johnson and Hogan point out in their chapter, the behavior of someone faking a test is a subset of the behavior of the person in his or her entire life, and the critical research question concerns the degree to which and manner in which behavior in one domain generalizes to behavior in other domains. This observation illuminates the fact that the topic of faking is also a key part of understanding the relationship between personality and behavior. The central goal of theoretical psychology is to understand why people do the things they do. The central goal of applied psychology is to predict what someone will do in the future. Both of these goals come together in the study of applicant faking.

The use of integrity tests for pre-employment screening.

In recent years, personality assessment by professional psychologists has taken on an increasingly important role in the field of police work. Most importantly, personality assessment instruments have been utilized in the pre-employment psychological screening of police officer candidates. This psychological screening takes place at the end of the hiring process to ensure that candidates do not have personality characteristics or existing psychopathology that would interfere with their job performance. Personality assessment is also used for other applications in police psychology. These applications include fitness-for-duty evaluations (FFDEs) and second opinion evaluations of officers who challenge hiring decisions. Moreover, police psychologists are involved in a considerable amount of research in order to determine which tests and scales are most appropriate for evaluations. The present volume is divided into four parts to cover the relevant issues in personality assessment for police work. Part I provides an introduction and the basic principles of personality assessment in police psychology. Part II focuses on the major assessment instruments used in police psychology. These include the MMPI-2, the Personality Assessment Inventory (PAI), the Inwald Personality Inventory (IPI) and Hilson Tests, the M-PULSE Inventory, pre-offer integrity instruments, and the Rorschach Comprehensive System. Part III examines multiple issues in personality assessment research in the field of police psychology. Part IV covers applications of personality assessment in police psychology. These applications include pre-employment evaluations, fitness for duty evaluations, conditional second opinion psychological evaluations of candidates, using multiple sources of information when conducting mandatory or required evaluations, and the politics of personality assessment in police agencies. This unique and comprehensive text is designed for psychologists who are actively working in the field of law enforcement, including psychologists in both applied and research/academic settings.

This book Key Stage 2 Maths is for 10 and 11 year olds. Some of the initial work will also be useful for 9 year olds. It concentrates mainly on Arithmetic and Algebra, these being the building blocks of mathematics. There are tests on each topic and the last test (Test 26) has mixed questions which should give some indication of how much a given pupil has progressed. Aim to get at least 60 -70% of the questions right. Each test is good for a starter lesson or for a 10-15 minute homework or indeed self-study. Your patient has been intubated. Intravenous access has been unsuccessfully attempted twice. Which of the following is also an acceptable route for drug administration during a code?

A patient is in cardiac arrest. Ventricular fibrillation has been refractory to an initial shock. What is the recommended route for drug administration during CPR?

A patient is in refractory ventricular fibrillation. High-quality CPR is in progress, and shocks have been given. One dose of epinephrine was given after the second shock. An antiarrhythmic drug was given immediately after the third shock. What drug should the team leader request to be prepared for administration next?

A 57-year-old woman has palpitations, chest discomfort, and tachycardia. The monitor shows a regular wide-complex tachycardia at a rate of 180 beats per minute. She becomes diaphoretic, and her blood pressure is 80 over 60. The next action is to

A patient is in cardiac arrest. High-quality chest compressions are being given. The patient is intubated and an I.V. has been started. The rhythm is asystole. Which is the first drug/dose to administer?

A 45-year-old woman with a history of palpitations develops light-headedness and palpitations. She has received adenosine 6 milligrams for the rhythm shown above without conversion of the rhythm. She is now extremely apprehensive. Her Blood pressure is 108 over 70. What is the next appropriate intervention?

#22: A patient in the emergency department develops recurrent chest discomfort suspicious for ischemia. Oxygen is being administered via a nasal device at 4 Liters per minute, and an I.V. line is in place. The systolic blood pressure is 160. There are no allergies or contraindications to any medication. You would first order

Following initiation of CPR and 1 shock, Ventricular fibrillation persists. A second shock is given and chest compressions are resumed immediately. An I.V. is in place and no drugs have been given. Bag-mask ventilations are producing visible chest rise. What is your next order?

You arrive on the scene to find a 56-year-old diabetic woman with dizziness. She is pale and diaphoretic. Her systolic blood pressure is 80. The cardiac monitor shows a brady arrhythmia. The Client is receiving oxygen at 4 Liters per minute and an I.V. has been established. Your next order is
