Intro

Magic and Supernatural One of the features of native African culture is belief in hoodoo or black magic. Laye gives numerous accounts of exhibition of magical powers by his father and mother. His father, for example, by virtue of belonging to the Malinke tribe, has the power to create gold out of iron. His father possesses the power of the black snake, which enables him to perform these supernatural feats. Likewise, the descriptions of 'powers' wielded by his mother are equally mythical. For example, having been born in a tribe whose totem is the crocodile his mother will never be attacked by crocodiles in the dangerous river. Likewise, she has special powers to heal wounded animals. By treating these magical elements as myth, the reader can then sift out factual information from the book.

Ritual Ritual ceremonial actions performed in a prescribed order is a major theme in the memoir. Laye introduces the concept in the second chapter when detailing his father's gold-smelting process. Far more complicated than simply heating gold flakes, Laye's father's gold ritual demands bodily purification with oils, consultation with his guiding spirit snake, and the uttering of incantations that rid the gold of evil spirits. Laye writes of these ritual experiences with sentimentality, but he is also conscious that he is writing for a Western audience that has likely never heard of the rituals woven into the fabric of Guinean life.

Uncertainty The theme first arises when Laye and his father discuss Laye's father's totem, the snake. The conversation about the guiding spirit of their race takes a mournful turn when Laye's father intimates that he knows Laye is destined to spend more time at school and less with him in the forge. The sight of his father's grief anguishes Laye, and he doesn't know whether he should stay in school or stay close to his father. This uncertainty comes up again when Laye helps his uncle harvest rice in Tindican. In a similar scene, his uncle comments that Laye, as a student, is not destined to become a farmhand.
