Glimpses of Europe in 1851 and 1867-8

Reprint of the original, first published in 1859. The publishing house Anatiposi publishes historical books as reprints. Due to their age, these books may have missing pages or inferior quality. Our aim is to preserve these books and make them available to the public so that they do not get lost.

Glimpses of Europe

Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts (1) We have not used OCR(Optical Character Recognition), as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. (2) In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images, so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy.

Glimpses of Europe

Excerpt from Holy Land With Glimpses of Europe and Egypt: A Year's Tour What travelers the Americans are I find them everywhere, said a solid, intelligent, good-natured English lady as she reached, almost out of breath, the top of the last ight Of stairs in the lofty tower of the great Cathedral of N otre Dame in Antwerp, and looked a few feet above where I had just climbed to the highest accessible point. She might have added, if She had looked over the lists of our publishers, and how many books of travels they write Every author, I suppose, perceives - though others may not - reasons sufficient to justify his publication. He differs, per haps, in some important respects, from others who have gone over the same ground, or he has so wrought up, arranged, and con densed his materials as to present in a life-like manner just what is most desirable and interesting to readers generally. ### Glimpses of Europe (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Glimpses by Sea and Land: During a Six Months' Trip to Europe Whilst giving "the desire expressed by many of the writer's friends" - to have the fragmentary letters contained in this little volume thus collected and published, as the inducement for so doing - sounds rather hackneyed, yet, being no more trite than true, in the absence of any better reason, it may be allowed to pass. And in truth it may be added, that but for this, they would not at any time have come before the public. These extracts are the same, with very little exception, that appeared in The Friend in the First month of 1863. But they were carefully read over before reprinting on account of many typographical errors, which, owing to absence from home, the writer missed the opportunity of correcting at the time it ought to have been done; also, for the purpose of re-adjusting some awkwardly expressed paragraphs, which in the too hasty preparation for the press, were mutilated in making partial omissions.
