#dark matter #dinosaurs #mass extinction #cosmic events #paleontology cosmology

Explore the intriguing, albeit speculative, connection between the mysterious dark matter of our universe and the ancient reign of dinosaurs. This theory delves into how unseen cosmic forces and their periodic gravitational shifts might have influenced Earth's geological activity, potentially contributing to the dramatic mass extinction events that reshaped prehistoric life.

Introduction to Dark Matter And The Dinosaurs by Lisa Randall

We might not be able to see dark matter, but that doesn't mean we can't understand it.

Dark matter played a significant role in shaping our universe.

Meteoroids have been hitting Earth for billions of years and might have played an important role in the formation of life.

Unlike the meteoroids that enter Earth's atmosphere every day, comets are unique.

Devastating meteoroids don't strike Earth often – but recent ones have revealed their destructive potential.

The meteorite impact that caused the dinosaur extinction was one of five major extinction events.

Despite the massive damage ancient meteorites caused, finding evidence of their impacts on Earth isn't easy.

Some very specific clues led to the discovery of the K-Pg crater.

Evidence suggests that there may be a regularity to mass extinctions caused by comets.

The Milky Way's galactic tide and our solar system's orbital path offer possible explanations for why comets come from the Oort cloud.

Only time will tell if dark matter is the reason for the massive meteoroids that hit Earth every 32 million years.

Using half the Sculpey, form a large ball

Break this large ball into 3 smaller balls

Taking the larger ball, shape to form the body

Form the head using a smaller ball

Attach the head to the body and smooth

While smoothing began to form the neck

Continue smoothing the body of the dinosaur

Attach leg and smooth in place
