The Argosy, No. 1, January, 1891

Argosy is a revival of the classic pulp format for the digital age, publishing low-cost, quality pulp fiction in ebook format. Volume 1 contains fantastic yarns from the frontiers of humanity, whether that be the old American West, the colonies of Mars, Saturn's asteroids or worlds beyond our solar system. Within this volume: The Martian Falcon by Andrew J Lucas A noir tale set on a Martian colony, inspired by the pulp classic The Maltese Falcon. Marshal Jones's Hunt by James Hoffmeister A space western on a terraformed planet about a gun-run gone terribly wrong. Parsec Hiccup by Lancer Kind A western style tale about a meteoroid mining camp that's the site of a love triangle that turns into a musical battle. Summers in the Snow by Clay Sheldon A space western on a maglev. To say any more would give away the twist. Kila S Tidwell (2204-2287) by Shombuddha Majumdar A space western styled as an obituary detailing the truth behind one of the future's most important industrialist. Falling by William Meikle A weird western about Civil War scouts transported to a strange and terrifying place. Last Stand of the Calaveras Kid by Cynthia Ward A weird western where ancient magic causes two timelines to intertwine. Valley of the Lost by Robert E. Howard This volume's republication, a seminal weird western by the brilliant Robert E. Howard. Artwork by Tais Teng.

Argosy

One of the greatest series from the pages of Argosy is finally collected, complete and in order! Footloose ship's wireless operator Peter Moore becomes embroiled in mystery and intrigue in China as he faces the despotic Gray Dragon, thus beginning Moore's long-running, adventure-filled journey across several decades of pulp fiction masterpieces. Written by long-time Argosy author George F. Worts under his primary pen-name, Peter the Brazen made a marked impression on Argosy reader Lester Dent when he co-created Doc Savage. The saga of Peter the Brazen is amongst the best adventure series in the history of pulp fiction.

The Argosy Volume 52

Once voted Adventure Magazine's most popular author, W.C. Tuttle introduced the world to one of his longest-running--and most popular--series characters, Henry Harrison Conroy, in the pages of Argosy. Collected here are the first four stories. Volume #4 in The Argosy Library.

The Argosy Vol. 51, No. 1, January, 1891

Rated by the readers of The All-Story Magazine as one of the most popular series to ever appear in that fabled pulp title, the stories of adventurer Peter Gross reached their pinnacle during a subseries of novels featuring Koyala, the mysterious Argus Pheasant of Borneo. These South Seas adventures cross genres with the then-popular "Yellow Peril" stories. Volume 1 collects the first two novels, "The Argus Pheasant" (1917) and "Koyala the Beautiful" (1918).

The Argosy Volume 56

Excerpt from The Argosy, Vol. 29: December, 1898, to March, 1899 Tony evidently understood it all, for he nodded sympathetically from time to time, and at the end he drew from the scanty concealment of his apology for clothing a fragment of rice cake, which he handed to the castaway. The Argosy Volume 41

Finally in book form: the burly pearler-Bellow Bill Williams--was one of the most popular, and colorful, characters who appeared in the early 1930s issues of Argosy. Written by Ralph R. Perry, Bellow Bill was a seemingly-superhuman, tattoo-covered mountain of a sailor who couldn't keep from stumbling into one adventure after another throughout the South Seas. Clearly another inspiration for the creation of Doc Savage (whose creator Lester Dent was an avid reader of Argosy during this period), these adventures of Bellow Bill have never before been reprinted. Included here are his first six stories, originally appearing in 1929-31.

The City of Stolen Lives: The Adventures of Peter the Brazen

Considered one of the most authentic police procedurals from the pulp magazines, author Victor Maxwell relied on his own experience as a crime reporter to chronicle the cases of Sgt. Riordon and Detective Halloran in this long-running series from Detective Fiction Weekly. Never before reprinted, this edition collects the first eight stories in the series. Includes an introduction by Maxwell aficionado Terry Sanford which features several rare Maxwell family photos.

The Argosy Book of Sea Stories

Stranded on Venus, astronaut Carson Napier nevertheless finds his way on the mist-shrouded planet, falling in love with Duare, princess of Vepaja, and then seeking to rescue her from her enemies, who have kidnapped her. Reprint.

The Sherlock of Sageland - The Complete Tales of Sheriff Henry

Action thriller by the classic adventure writer set in British Columbia.

The Complete Adventures of Koyala

Femme fatale Mme. Rozika Storey was one of the most popular series characters in the pages of Argosy during the 1920s-30s. These detective stories are fast-paced adventures which pushed Madame Storey's masterful deductive skills to the limit. Volume 1 contains the first three stories in the series.

The Argosy, Vol. 29

Kidnapped as infant, raised in a menagerie by a mad doctor was Jan escaped into the jungle...Excerpt- This boy, the innocent victim of the doctor's insane hatred for a woman, had never seen a human being other than the physician. Nor had he glimpsed any more of the outside world than might be observed through the small, high windows of the menagerie, or above the tall stockade just outside it, where he was exercised. Dr. Bracken had loved the boy's mother, Georgia Adams, a titian-haired Southern beauty, with a fiery passion of which few men are capable. A sudden declaration before his departure on a trip to Africa had won what he thought was a promise from her--a half-hearted assent she had evidently regretted the moment he had gone; but it was the one thing on which he had counted during all his weary months of tramping in the jungles. Her face had smiled at him in the light of many a camp fire; her voice had soothed his troubled sleep as he lay in his net-covered hammock while fierce beasts of prey roamed just outside. For him the red-gold sunsets had reflected the glory of her titian hair. Bits of the blue vault of heaven visible at times through rents in the forest canopy, had hinted of the more wondrous blue of her eyes. But he had returned to America only to have the cup of happiness dashed rudely from his lips--for she had married Harry Trevor. True, she had told him, when they had a few moments alone, of writing a letter breaking the engagement only a week after his departure. He had accepted the statement politely, yet deep in his heart he doubted it. She had broken faith, and in his estimation a woman capable of that was capable of anything. The letter, if indeed there had been a letter, had never reached him. So love had turned to hate--an abnormally intense hate that filled his waking hours and made his nights restless and hideous--a passionate, unreasoning hate that engendered a desire which soon became a fixed purpose and the sole end toward which he planned and strove--revenge. But Dr. Bracken's warped mind had cunningly pretended friendship, so cunningly that he served the Trevors as their family physician in Florida. And the birth of a son and heir gave him his long-awaited opportunity for a revenge which would be no trifling retribution from which Georgia Trevor would soon recover. The kidnapping of the day-old boy had been ridiculously easy. At first the doctor's diabolical plan had been to mutilate and cripple the child, turn his face into a hideous monstrosity, and return him, to be a living curse to his parents. But an event had occurred in the menagerie which changed his plans and gave him the germ of an even more diabolical scheme. For the male chimpanzee, Tichuk, at that time caged with his mate Chicma, had slain their little one in a fit of fury and was attacking her, when the doctor returned with the stolen baby. Dr. Bracken had quieted both chimpanzees with hypodermics and removed the unconscious Tichuk to another cage. Then, a terrible smile upon his face; he had skinned the baby chimpanzee, treated its hide with an odorless preservative--and sewed the cotton-padded skin about the human baby. As Chicma came out of her drugged sleep he placed the child in her arms. The chimpanzee, dazed and foggy of perception, had sniffed the hairy hide of her own child. She recognized the scent and feel; yet the tensely waiting doctor, club and whip in hand, saw her hesitate in puzzlement, as if on the verge of flinging away this somehow suspiciously changed child of hers. But nature and mother-instinct conquered, and she fed the hungry infant.

The Black Tide: The Complete Adventures of Bellow Bill Williams

Excerpt from The Argosy, Vol. 20: July to December, 1875 The last time she had heard that voice was when it spoke to her. What were the words? If I could only tell you how much I love you 1 It was to her those words were spoken - to her, Eleanor Lloyd But surely it was not yesterday, but long, long years ago, that she had heard them She felt already as if she had loved him all her life. Threads of Evidence

A pioneer of the fantastic fiction genre that spawned a thousand imitators, Perley Poore Sheehan was one of the most popular authors of the pulps of the 1910s-30s. This oversized edition collects four of Sheehan's best stories from the pages of the All-Story and Argosy-stories which have never before been reprinted-and it's headlined by his fantasy classic "The Woman from the Pyramid": Carlton, an Egyptologist encounters the woman who's been haunting him in his dreams, and in his quest to learn who she is, he finds himself thrown five thousand years in the past, reincarnated as an Egyptian nobleman. Collecting the "The Woman of the Pyramid," as well as "The Lone Seminole," "The One Gift," and "Egrets."

Lost on Venus

Excerpt from The Argosy, Vol. 46: July to December, 1888 Most men have their romance in life sooner or later. Mine had come in due course, and she who made it for me was Annabel Brightman. After my first meeting with her, when she was a child of fourteen, and I not much more than a lad of twenty, I had continued to see her from time to time, for Mr. Brightman's first invitation to me was but the prelude to others. I watched her grow up into a good, unaffected woman, lovable and charming as she was when a child. Childhood had passed away now, and thought and gentleness had taken its place; and to my eyes and my heart no other girl in the world could compare with Annabel Brightman. Her father suspected it. Had he lived only a little longer he would have learned it beyond doubt, for I should have spoken out more fully upon the matter. A little less than a year before his death - it was on a Good Friday - I was spending the day at his house, and was in the garden with Annabel. She had taken my arm, and we were pacing the broad walk to the left of the lawn, thinking only of ourselves, when raising my eyes I saw Mr. Brightman looking attentively at us from one of the French windows. He beckoned to me, and I went in. "Charles," said he, when I had stepped inside, "no nonsense. You and Annabel are too young for anything of that sort." I felt that his eyes were full upon me as I stood before him, and my face flushed to the roots of my hair. But I took courage to ask a question. "Sir, every year passing over our heads will lessen that objection. Would there be any other?" "Be quiet, Charles. Time enough to talk of these things when the years shall have passed. You are too young for them, I say." About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Landslide

Excerpt from The Argosy, Vol. 23: January to June, 1877 It was a cold, bright February morning in Paris, and the bustle of departure by the mail-train for Calais was at its height at the Station du Nord. At the time of which we speak - some years ago - this was no light matter to encounter. If ever there was a place in which the nervous, inexperienced passenger would be apt to look longingly back to the comparative comfort of railways at home, it was this same Station du Nord in those days. The penning up at first, the rush afterwards, the worry with luggage, the extortion of porters, might all have been a joke to those with strength, and spirits, and money; but were real trials to those without. On the morning in question there was a young English passenger, who, though deficient neither in courage nor in hopefulness, felt, for a few moments, with almost bitter despair, her inability to hold her own without a protector in that impatient, struggling crowd. A thin, pale girl, plainly and insufficiently clad, and, to judge by the sharpness of her features, no less insufficiently fed, she might have hoped, at least, to escape observation by insignificance; and it was no small addition to her troubles to find herself the subject of insolent comment audibly uttered by one young commis to another, as they manuvred to keep near her that they might divert themselves at her expense. The Scrap of Lace: The Complete Cases of Madame Storey

In his youth, George Frank Worts had been a telegraph operator on ships making the China run when he turned his experiences in Asia into some of the most memorable escape fiction ever to appear of the pages of Argosy magazine. The volume collects the first five stories in the saga of Singapore Sammy Shay and Lucky Jones of the schooner, Blue Goose.

A Science Fiction Argosy

Dive into the mesmerizing world of The Ta-an, the Crô-Magnon tribe, with Paul L. Anderson's The Son of the Red God and Other Tales of the Ta-an, Volume 1. Originally penned for Argosy magazine, this collection unveils the saga of The People of the Mountain Caves. A significant influence on legendary author Robert E. Howard, these stories set the stage for Howard's early work, including his story "Am-ra the Ta-an." Volume 1 features gripping tales like "The Son of the Red God," "The Lord of the Winged Death," and "The Cave That Swims On the Water." With a fresh introduction by Howard scholar Rusty Burke, this volume is a captivating journey into the roots of epic fantasy.

Call of the Savage

One of the most popular series from Argosy's later years, Murray R. Montgomery penned a number of stories chronicling the adventures of Her Majesty's Guard Richard Cleve and French cavalier Monsieur le Comte Guy d'Entreville... partners and rakehellies of the Cardinal's Guard and in the service of Cardinal Richelieu in seventeenth-century France. Much-revered and enjoyed by thousands of Argosy readers, these fast-paced stories have never before been reprinted.

What if you asked 125 top writers to pick their favorite books? Which titles would come out on top? You'll find the answer in The Top Ten: Writers Pick Their Favorite Books: the ultimate guide to the world's greatest books. As writers such as Norman Mailer, Annie Proulx, Stephen King, Jonathan Franzen, Claire Messud, Margaret Drabble, Michael Chabon and Peter Carey name the ten books that have meant the most to them, you'll be reminded of books you have always loved and introduced to works awaiting your discovery. The Top Ten includes summaries of 544 books—each of which is considered to be among the ten greatest books ever written by at least one leading writer. In addition to each writer's Top Ten List, the book features Top Ten Lists tabulated from their picks, including: • The Top Ten Books of All Time • The Top Ten Books by Living Writers • The Top Ten Books of the Twentieth Century • The Top Ten Mysteries • The Top Ten Comedies The Top Ten will help readers answer the most pressing question of all: What should I read next?

The Woman of the Pyramid and Other Tales: The Perley Poore Sheehan Omnibus

Jan goes to India on a new Adventure!

The Argosy, Vol. 46

Mystery runs rampant in the quiet, upstate New York town of Four Corners.... Easily one of Roscoe's best-written series, Volume 1 collects the first half of this lost masterpiece of the pulps. Volume #10 in The Argosy Library.

A beam of darkness had been paid on Fifth Avenue for precisely fifteen minutes, and a forewarned underworld had reaped the harvest. Every source of valuables that could be found had been cleaned put. An amazing and baffling new weapon of the Underworld put New York at Crime's mercy, and has left the city's police blindly grasping for answers. Written by noted Science Fiction author Murray Leinster, "The Darkness on Fifth Avenue" and its three sequels are finally collected in book form.
