Diminishing Love is a story of a man that finds what he thinks is true love. You know the old saying. If it's too good to be true then it probably is. Noveltry

The goal of writing this book was primary for women. I wanted to express the many sides of love and emotions. I especially wanted to put emphasis on the word Her. This book is a product of my own personal feelings towards women and how I perceive them to be in relationships. My hope is that the readers of this book will be able to look within and reflect on how they feel about relationships and romance. My purpose is to grow and learn about how women function when it comes to the subject of intimate connections with men.

The Intimate Side Of A Poet's Heart

These poems are a collection of the thoughts and feelings about everyday life and the awesome power of love. Love can be the driving force behind every success or unrequited love can be the downfall of anyone whose life has been affected. These poems reflect the various stages in life's dealings with LOVE. Some are happy, some are sad and some, even resentful, but through it all, love can survive. There are three very important types of love: Godly love, brotherly love, and sexual love. All have their place in life and all in some way have been addressed through the words in this book

Words of Life

Words of Life celebrates love and friendship in verse and shares in the life of someone who has been through life experiences shared by so many. In a world where there is such uncertainty and chaos, the emotions expressed in these poems appear in tranquil and peaceful words of the heart. The collection has been divided into three distinct sections: Love and the Heart, Strength and Courage, and Dedication. From the joy of finding love to the agony of discovering that your beloved does not love you, the emotions that this collection explores will not soon be forgotten. There is Love Through the storm of diminishing life There is love Through the pain that cuts like a knife There is love Though there are risks you are taking It is the time you are making To create a love that will last A remedy to the past There is love Do not look back, erase your fear Hold the one you love close and near Do not second guess your feelings Hold on to your continuous reelings There is love Keep each other in your hearts safe and warm Always let your love whether every storm Repel the worrywarts and non-believers Together, you will be the achievers There is love

The Things I Meant To Say

Barrett began writing love poems in his early 20's. He is a distant relative of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and when introduced to her work became immediately inspired. This book is comprised of poems Barrett has written over the past 40 years. They are both love poems and inspirational poems which he hopes will be enjoyed by readers of all ages. Many of the love poems were dedicated to his first real love, Lynn, and others written to his late wife, Patricia to whom he was married for 37 years. Some of the poetry is lyrical and some prose. His hope is that you will be touched by the words, perhaps warming your heart and those around you, whether remembering past or current loves, friends and family. This book is meant to awaken your passion for life and the emotions that you have deep inside, and even perhaps "the things you meant to say."

ON LOVE

I am a novelist, creating stories out of thin air, yet not thin air, since each story is a part of my life, and a part of me has been aching to create since I first learned the wonder of words and what they could achieve on a sheet of paper. After waving my children goodbye, I began to do what I know I was born to do-write, and the ache that burrowed inside me, when I put my domestic life first, left me even as I penned my first line. Writing is more than an art to me; it is a passion. I live and breathe along with my characters. I am at one with them when I am at my typewriter creating a life that is as real to me as my own. Their thoughts are my thoughts, their feelings are my feelings. I dig deep within myself. I must leave nothing to mere fantasy. They are me and I am them and nothing less will do. It is as if I have a dual personality. Is it any wonder that so many great writers take to drink! You must have the strength of mind to separate the two lives you live, side by side, day after day while you are creating. You fall in love with your characters, good or evil. You empathize with them. It is the only way to write, the only way to create the reality that is necessary to fill the pages of a book. It is exhausting, fulfilling. It is gratifying when you feel and see those pages, that began in your mind, spring to life as if by a magic power that goes beyond yourself. And it is exactly what it feels like, that the pages are writing themselves. Since being alone, it is the only way I want to live my life. If that sounds sad, it is far from it. I have lived as a wife and mother for many years. It was satisfying and wonderful and I would not change a single moment of that precious time. Now, I am living as the writer I always craved to be, and I am loving every moment of it, even with all the discouragement that goes with being an aspiring writer, until that day finally comes when you have arrived.

Life on an Emotional High

I'd describe this as my book of stimulation in poetry, with experiences of my life for both men and woman to enjoy. In this book I am divulging myself through poetry in a way different from others. Stretching your imagination of what you think poetry is while expressing myself on many different levels. At the same time I'll be giving you a hint at my experiences in conversations and thoughts with others. Just me riding the roller coaster of life screaming and hollering waving my hands and having a good time with writing. All of this while giving you secrets written in my poetry to leave you guessing and wondering, is this about her, her life, her relationships in love, life and marriage? Who was that about? Just making you wonder. So many thoughts in my writing that it will make you wonder about me, wonder about you and your life. All of my writings are from my heart to my pen, with a modest amount of modification and a minuscule amount of proofreading, limited enough to keep my writings as real as possible. In writing straight from your pen it's never perfect and sending my book to be professionally proofread I thought would make my thoughts too unreal, too commercial; take some of my personality or zest out of my book. I wanted my writings to be as if someone was really speaking through writing. Even if my grammar was terrible, it would be the real me. The corrections I have done are straight from spell check from my laptop giggle, now we all know how that could be, but I did it anyway. I've exposed me and my thoughts in a way that has allowed me to sky rocket to another level, to another me. I've extended to you Theaology, THE STUDY OF THEA, Thea and the life experiences she has surrounded herself in, along with the joys of living to learn what life really was about and not the just the pretty picture we all want and or pretend it is. My painting of life is an explosion of time, painted in yellows and reds. Colors of laughter and smiles that are to abundant to count. Colors that allow me to stand in the wings of life and spilling it out to you in expression, thoughts and short stores of which will allow you to think twice about your life experiences and enjoy every single moment that god has extended to you. Now what I am asking for from each one of you while reading my book is to enjoy my book with an open mind. Don't tear it down too much but read what I have to say and live in the joy of my development of it. Let me explain briefly some of the chapters in this book. Chapter one is about love's hurts, joys and change that we all can relate to. In reading you will get a picture of what love and life is about, a picture of the happiness, the sadness, the ups and downs and the just plain sick and tired of love. My poetry will express this in every way I could imagine. Poetry of love so deep you will need a shovel to recover from it, because it pulls you in and makes you shake your head to say I've been there. In this chapter there is a poem written in the form of a short story called, An Un-produced Movie of Romance. It is a screen play rewind; yes that's how I am going to describe it. It's the perfect story for the question, where is this love going? Chapter two, well I've devoted this to the men, it's my own unique message for them. My way of saying you are spectacular, even when we don't tell you, you shine. I speak in this chapter as if I am one of the boys. I've removed that I am woman hear me roar attitude, and I've learned that I couldn't roar without them as loud as I can now. In this chapter I play with 2 words I've created, do-luscious and flow. Read it you'll see what I mean, nothing but fun thoughts. My other favorite poem is The Struggle; it has a part one and a part two. Some of the woman who read these 2 poems may find objection to what I have written. But I had to say what I thought a man would say or wanted to say. The Struggle, was written

Emotion Etched in Words

B L Fleming grew up learning the importance of expressing love from the women in his life. Those being his Mother and Grandmother who raised him. Not only is it important to show love but it is important to express it in a way that can be remembered and referred to. Therefore he chooses the power of written word.

In recent decades, Latin love poetry has become a significant site for feminist and other literary critics studying conceptions of gender and sexuality in ancient Roman culture. This new volume, the first to focus specifically on gender dynamics in Latin love poetry, moves beyond the polarized critical positions that argue that this poetry either confirms traditional gender roles or subverts them. Rather, the essays in the collection explore the ways in which Latin erotic texts can have both effects, shifting power back and forth between male and female. If there is one conclusion that emerges, it is that the dynamics of gender in Latin amatory poetry do not map in any single way onto the cultural and historical norms of Roman society. In fact, as several essays show, there is a dialectical relationship between this poetry and Roman cultural practices. By complicating the views of gender dynamics in Latin love poetry, this exciting new scholarship will stimulate further debates in classical studies and literary criticism with its fresh perspectives.

This study of the poetry of Francisco de Quevedo combines a stylistic analysis with a philosophical interpretation in the broad sense.

Orchids and Tamarind

How does one describe a feeling? Some say there are no words that can perfectly reproduce one's feelings in another-but poetry comes close. Written with incredible honesty and self-knowledge, Between the Lines is a stunning collection of poems from Céline Zabad. Ranging in length from a single line to full pages, her poems mimic at once the brevity and vastness of feeling. Her verse is at times as free as a cloud, other times as solid as stone. Her words are philosophies and feelings in their own rights, on love, loss, loyalty, betrayal, hope, and disappointment-on life. Zabad encapsulates the thrill of love's first blush and the freezing burn of heartbreak. Her feelings flow freely throughout the collection, lending her poetry uncommon authenticity and power. Nature thrives between the lines of her verse, reminding the reader that tears are as natural as raindrops. Whether you're looking for new ways to think about your own feelings or are simply passionate about poetry, you'll find plenty to love in this collection. To better understand the complexities of emotion in yourself and others, you must read Between the Lines.

Coffee Black Spoken Word

What is about love poetry that we so love? Why is poetry such a popular medium for expressing love? This short book will try to answer these questions by taking a look at some of the finest poetry in the English language. The complex, concentrated language of a poem has a lot in common with the complexity and intensity of love. But poetry is never only about love. Its meanings reach into other areas of our lives. The popularity of love poetry suggests that readers crave literary encounters with love. We want to have our feelings and experiences reflected back at us in words. Reading poems, we anticipate a glimmer of recognition. This book starts with a look at love poetry's modern historical development. Then we spend time with individual poets, beginning with William Shakespeare in the sixteenth century. Their verse will demonstrate different ways in which poets have written about love.

How Love Poems Work

Northern Irish Poetry and Domestic Space explores why houses, in some ways the most private of spaces, have taken up such visibly public positions in the work of a range of prominent poets from Northern Ireland, examining the work of Seamus Heaney, Michael Longley, Derek Mahon and Medbh McGuckian.

Poems of Love, Life & Me

MEDIEVAL POETRY In a series of original essays from leading literary scholars, this Companion offers a chronological sweep of medieval poetry from Old English to the great genres of romance, narrative, and alliterative poetry of the 15th century. Beginning in the Anglo-Saxon period, the volume explores the Old English language and its alliterative tradition, before moving on to examine the genres of heroic, devotional, wisdom and epic poetry, culminating in a discussion of arguably the founding text of the English literary canon, the great epic Beowulf. In part two, the Companion moves on to discuss the linguistic and social changes brought about as a result of the Norman Conquest, exploring how this influenced the development of literary genres. Essays probe the shifts and continuities in genres such as lyric, chronicle and dream vision, and the emergence of new genres such as popular and courtly romance, and drama. A particular focus is the continuation of the alliterative tradition from the Anglo-Saxon period to the fifteenth century. A series of chapters on major authors, including Chaucer, Gower, and Langland, provide fresh approaches to reading and studying key texts, such as The Canterbury Tales, Piers Plowman and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Finally, the collection examines cultural change at the close of the medieval period and the variety of literature produced in the 'long fifteenth century', including writing by and for women, Scots poetry, clerical and courtly works, and secular and sacred drama.

A Companion to Medieval Poetry

The girl that he met, during the time he started to write, would end up being his first love, and most of his poems would originate from the feeling he had for her. Just like most teens, he lost his first love, but not only once. Over the course of a year, he tried to be with her, but everytime he got her back, she would leave him again. All of the love, anger, and pain, that he was feeling when this was going on--he just let his emotions run his pencil across pieces of paper. What you will see in this book, is all the love, anger, and hate, that tormented Paris, through these three years of his life.

Here are the early Sufis themselves. Here are their ascetic practices; their attitudes toward women and marriage, toward food and drink, and toward music and poetry; and here is their ecstatic experience. This is a study in holiness and the love of God, but it is even more a study of men and women overcome by that holiness and love, and locked in the paradox of loving a God who makes vast demands on them. The early Sufis were not seeking consolation. Who they were and what they were after, the reader will discover here. Topics discussed include the historical background of early Muslim mysticism and the relations between Muslim and Christian ascetics. Andrae suggests parallels drawn from his vast reading in the literature of religious experience, both East and West.

Here Lies My Heart and Soul

Beginning with a retrospective of the past century, this book offers a panoramic picture of Chinese comparative literature, from its nascence in the early 1920s, through its evolution in the 1980s, to the new development at the turn of the century, ending with a prospective look at the future of comparative literature in the 21st century. The articles presented here reveal the author's deep understandings of the literature and culture of her own country and those of other countries. A rich array of case studies and in-depth theorizing make it an extremely interesting and enlightening read. Prof. Daiyun Yue is a prominent professor at Peking University and a leading figure in Chinese comparative literature. She has served as Head of the Institute for Comparative Literature and Cultural Studies, PKU (1984—1998) and the third president of the Chinese Comparative Literature Association (1989—2014). Further, she is the founder of Dialogue Transcultural, a much-acclaimed journal of comparative literature. Prof. Yue approaches outstanding literature as a bridge to link people of different cultural traditions: "The reason why interdisciplinary literary research between two alien cultures is possible is because dialog between alien cultures, along with exchange and understanding, is more readily realized through literature." Herein lies the value of comparative literature.

It's about Love

"Can sagacity of words prevail against the poignancy of pictures?" is perhaps the most central theme of this book, Dialogues between Two who tried to love and failing that tried to share their inner dimensions. An artist, George Hickie Garland (1944-1983) and a poet, Ruth Ann Allaire, shared a brief moment in time in the early 1980s, George died in an automobile accident in 1983. Ruth Ann kept the pictures he had drawn and in dealing with her grief developed a book in an attempt to answer the original question. Now almost 40 years later she is publishing this book and hopes that you, the reader, will share their dialogue about the many questions of life. Either the poem was about a shared experience, for example, You and I, or about the same subject from the view of each. For example, Strawberries. The relationships with families are also examined in The Reasons They Didn't Write and At Her Father's Grave. Love and hate, life and death, grief and solace are subjects covered at some length. Violence rears itself in ugly reality in Give Away. Erotic love appears in Classicism and The Tickle of Your Beard as well as Walking on the Sand Spit In February. The pain of loss is prevalent throughout the book and the imagery both literal and figurative permeates the work bringing us to the original question "Can sagacity of words prevail against the poignancy of pictures?" Take your time and examine each poem against each picture and decide which portrays the subject more effectively. If you want to share your comments e-mail rallaire@aol.com or post on www.aginggracefullyandgratefully.com

Nelson's New Illustrated Bible Commentary

Writing has always been a cathartic experience to express the most intriguing parts of me; however, this is the first time sharing them publicly. While I usually share my poems with close friends and family only, I decided to take my own advice from this collection in particular and to embody in one more way the idea of loving life wildly! I came to start writing as a child and then as a performer my extensive training in Shakespeare began to influence my style in regards to cadence and punctuation. As a professional artist, my life has been full of interesting experiences - both good, bad and everywhere in between - but full of lessons guaranteed. So this small collection in particular I would like to dedicate to those who's hearts are broken, mending, reawakening, or yearning. Whatever the origin of the loss there always comes the rebuilding process and something I've personally found is that when it comes to love - whether it's something HUGE or something "small" others may not even register - the experience still feels the same. There's always the same lessons in loving. If you enjoy what you read please let me know by leaving a review! Whether it's amazing....or even if it's not your cup of tea. I would love to receive your feedback and have conversation about these topics or even hear from you about your own experiences! Thank you in advance for taking the time to read my work, it means the world to me:)

Dialogues Between Two

Thoughts On Love- the second book from author April Hill Writing. This collection includes the thoughts and ponderings on one of life's most complex obsessions by one of life's least complex brains. A combination of doodles and words trying their best to come to terms with what it is to feel and fall in love.

Lessons In Wild Love

"If I ever get married, my marriage won't have any problems, because I'm going to be a perfect husband and father." Is the idealistic young lawyer Jeffrey Schiller asking for too much? Will he spend a lifetime looking for his soulmate or settle for someone, or something, less than perfect? Is falling in love and getting married a sure prescription for happiness? Love To The Last Breath captures your imagination and breaks your heart in the process of answering these, and other, questions. Spanning twenty-five years, the well-wrought cast of characters and focussed plot drive this sweet, romantic dramedy onward. Love To The Last Breath is always entertaining, yet, with its underlying philosophical outlook, it demonstrates a love story need not be frivolous. The main characters are appealing individuals with strong family values and high moral standards. Passages flow, join forces, and build like waves, in turn, making you laugh, shed a tear, and pause to contemplate your own life. Romantic, hilarious, heart-wrenching, and inspiring, Love To The Last Breath is perfect for readers who believe at least in the possibility of finding the love of one's life.

Thoughts On Love

Skip is donating 100% of his royalties to the Baltimore Ronald McDonald House to help offset the cost of caring for the families and their children with special medical needs. When reading this book you will find your emotions overtaking your thoughts. Skip Stover reaches into the depths of your heart and massages your soul. As a true love writer, he will deliver a verse that will draw romance from the deepest part of your feelings, and excite your emotions, as he writes "If you should awake in the night, and I'm asleep, wake me, so you won't have to fall asleep, alone." . . Read through and get the feeling of romance back in your life, or if you are a romantic, enjoy the feelings from your heart. Brent Sampson, author of, "The Art of Poetry," writes, "Much like an actual poem, Solitary Thoughts hold wonderment for those who seek it. When it shimmers, it shines, flirting with all manner of love topics. Rarely will you uncover prose that percolates so perfectly." See what readers are saying at barnesandnoble.com. My Love, My Words

Part Two of my collection of poetry. This book is for those who enjoy an old soul type of love. The bone deep passion that brings out the helpless romantic in you, and gives hope that romance exist in today's fast pace and modern world. Reading these romantic poems is best enjoyed over a cup of coffee or tea in the morning, or sipping wine after a long hard working day.
