Introduction

What is leadership?

Most people are open to spiritual conversations

Why engage those around us? #1 We learn a ton

2 We are loving people by engaging them

3 It will change you

What is holding you back?

If you mess up the relational, content rarely matters

Examples of questions asked

What are some good questions to ask seekers?

Question #1 - What do you believe? (Proverbs 18:13)

Question #2 - Why do you believe it? (Proverbs 20:5)

What people most influenced you?

What experiences most shaped you?

What are your past hurts?

What do you think Christians believe?

Question #3 - Where so we agree?

Question #4 - Where do we differ?

Q&A portion

What biblical principles can guide leaders in making ethical decisions and navigating moral dilemmas in today's complex world?

How can we effectively dispel the idea that ministry or being trained for the ministry is primarily for pastors? As a professor, how do you practically help your students think correctly about the concept of ministry itself?

What do you think the church can do to protect and help restore their kids, young adults and anyone who needs protection and healing?

Every pastor I've met above 25 years old has been unwilling to even consider the possibility that the theology he has been indoctrinated into could be wrong, how can we get pastors (I would say Christians for that matter) to believe what the Bible really teaches?

How have you observed the approach to apologetics shift over time, especially over the last 10 years, and what questions do you believe are the most important for us as Christians to be equipped to answer today?

What encourages you most about the current youth generations?
