Each Log Gets a Saddle Shaped Profile Cut on the Top of It Now Let's Go Take a Look at How We Lay Out and Cut those Saddles We Use this Short Offcut Piece of Log To Go through the Procedure Let's Start with the Layout We Make Our Saddles 24 Inches Long for Logs of this Diameter and the Ridge of Our Saddle Will Be Two and a Half Inches Wide Instead of Using Our Tape To Mark that Out each Time Individually

But for Demonstration Purposes It's Generally Halfway through the Log so We'll Just Make a Reference Mark There Now We Need To Carry Our 24 Inch Width References Down to the Mid Face of the Log so We Know Where To Start Our Cutting and Then When We Cut Our Saddle Profile It Will Start with a Series of Cuts First One Being a Mid Cut That Defines the Depth of the Saddle .so What I'M Going To Do before I Meet the Right Side of the Scarf and Have the Saw Pop through I'M Going To Stop and I'M Just Going To Give My Bar a Little Pop and this Piece Is Going To Come Off and Then I Can Brush that Remaining Little Ridge Down to the Line It's Much More Controlled than Having the Saw Kind Of Surprisingly Pop through the Other Side of the Scarf
