 Transcript: We spend lots of time online. We text, we comment, we share. It's a big part of our lives.

The fact is that some people do try to hurt others online.

If someone is harassing you online, it's important not to respond.

Block them if you can, ignore them if you can't.

If it continues, save the evidence and ask an adult for help.

And don't be afraid to stand up for yourself, or to stand up for someone else being cyber bullied.

You can help stop cyberbullies by standing up for yourself or someone else.

And when you're communicating online -- remember to treat people the way you'd like to be treated.
