British Historical Medals of the 17th Century

As attractive as historical or commemorative medals are in their own right and as telling as they are by their designs and inscriptions of the persons or events they honour (or, in some cases, vilify or deride), they tell us much more: by means of inscriptions, design and allegory, they tell us their age, of their makers, of the purpose for which they were made, the manner in which they were made, and the 'story' their maker wished to communicate.

A Catalogue of British Historical Medals

This book provides an overview of the historical events during which Giuseppe Garibaldi rose from obscurity to leadership of the Italian unification movement or 'Risorgimento.' It accomplishes this goal by utilising the Anthony P Campanella Collection of medals, books, memorabilia and other resources relating to Giuseppe Garibaldi at the University of South Carolina. It affords an important resource for those who wish to research medals relating to Giuseppe Garibaldi's life and legacy. - About the author: Jerome J. Platt is a retired medical school professor of psychiatry, research director and research dean who has been an active collector and researcher of British medals for over 40 years. Originally trained as a psychologist, Dr Platt is the author or editor of over a dozen books on drug addiction, research and psychological issues, and co-author of the Spink titles British Historical Medals of the 17th Century: Medallists, Books, Authors, Collectors, Booksellers & Antiquaries and The English Civil Wars: Medals, Historical Commentary & Personalities.

A Catalogue of British Historical Medals, 1760-1960

Excerpt from Catalogue of the First Portion of the Important Collection of Coins and Medals Formed by the Late Wm. Boyne, Esq. F. S. A., Author of "Tokens of the Xviith Century Issued in England, Wales and Ireland," &C. &C. &C: Comprising in Gold, Silver, and Bronze, of the Greek, Roman, and Byzantine Series; Anglo-Saxon and English Coins; English Commemorative Medals, War Medals; Coin and Medal Cabinets; And a Large Numismatic Library Born in 1814 at Leeds, he commenced at a very early age the collecting of coins and medals, and devoting the whole of his leisure time to this pursuit, he when twenty years Old already possessed a collection of more than usual interest. It was to the Roman Series that his attention became, at first, particularly directed; and to these Coins he remained, throughout life, most partial. At about the same time he commenced to manifest much interest in the history of his native country, and his constant study and research in this direction, found expression in later life (in 1858) by the publication Of his work on the Tokens issued in the 17th, 18th, and 19th Centuries in Yorkshire. Whilst engaged in the gathering together of the materials for this work, he became aware of the want of, and the necessity for a work of a more comprehensive character, dealing with similar tokens issued throughout the British Kingdom. Endowed with a singular aptitude for the work, he in time collected, by his indefatigable industry, the enormous amount of information embodied in the work by which he will possibly be the best remembered, his monumental work on the Tokens issued in the 17th century in England, Wales and Ireland, published in 1858. A Guide to the Department of Coins and Medals in the British Museum

First published in 1986, this catalogue is the first publication in over one hundred years to list all known major types of the seventeenth century series of token coinage issued in the British Isles between 1648 and 1679. The tokens were mostly struck in copper or brass in denominations of farthings and half pennies. Commonly they were round, but octagonal, square and heart shaped flans were also used. They offer a fascinating insight into life and trade, personal circumstances and local history in the third quarter of the seventeenth century. The catalogue lists about fourteen thousand different tokens, based on the numbering system used in G.C. Williamson's classic work Trade Tokens Issued in the Seventeenth Century. (two volumes, 1889, 1891). Many tokens have come to light since that date and new entries have been inserted in the appropriate places using numbers with suffix letters. In places, over twenty percent of the tokens listed are 'new'. This is an indispensable catalogue for all collectors of the seventeenth century token series and will also be of great interest and use to local history students and economists interested in the period.

Catalogue of a Valuable Collection of English Medals and Jettons, in Gold, Silver, Copper, and Tin, the Property of a Gentleman, Commemorating the Most Interesting Events in British History, From the Sixteenth to the End of the Eighteenth Century

Fully revised second edition of Peter Duckers best-selling guide to military medals. This second edition of Peter Duckers best-selling British Military Medals traces the history of medals and gallantry awards from Elizabethan times to the modern day, and it features an expert account of their design and production. Campaign and gallantry medals are a key to understanding - and exploring - British and imperial military history, and to uncovering the careers and exploits of individual soldiers. In a series of succinct and well-organized chapters he explains how medals originated, to whom they were awarded and how the practice of giving medals has developed over the centuries. His work is a guide for collectors and for local and family historians who want to learn how to use medals to discover the history of military units and the experiences of individuals who served in them.

Commemorative Medals

Some three and a half centuries ago, Britain was convulsed by a series of civil wars. The names of its participants and major battles Oliver Cromwell and Charles I, Cavaliers and Roundheads, Edgehill and Dunbar are still well known today. These wars saw the introduction of medals as rewards for gallantry and campaign service. This book places these medals within the historical context of the times.
