Personality Test

Evaluating the Humanistic Perspective . Concepts like self-actualization are vague Emphasis on self may promote self- indulgence and lack of concern for others

Personality types, assessed by measures like the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator, consist of a number of traits. For example, a feeling type personality is sympathetic, appreciative, and tactful.

Factor Analysis Cattell found that large groups of traits could be reduced down to 16 core personality traits based on statistical correlations.

Personality Dimensions Hans and Sybil Eysenck suggested that personality could be reduced down to two polar dimensions, extraversion-introversion and emotional stability-instability.

MMPI-2

The Big Five Factors Today's trait researchers believe that Eysenck's personality dimensions are too narrow and Cattell's 16PF too large. So, a middle range (five factors) of traits does a better job of assessment.

The three factors, behavior, cognition, and environment, are interlocking determinants of each other. Bandura called the process of interacting with our environment reciprocal determinism.

Built from research on learning and cognition Fails to consider unconscious motives and individual disposition

Positive Psychology & Humanistic Psychology Positive psychology, such as humanistic psychology, attempts to foster human fulfillment. Positive psychology, in addition, seeks positive subjective well-being, positive character, and positive social groups.
