This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1839 Excerpt: ...Bill on the present occasion, I shall have to trouble your Lordships with some alterations that I propose. My Noble Friend who has now charge of the Bill, seems to speak of it, still, as a Bill to carry more effectually into operation the original Bill brought up to this House for facilitating the negotiations of bills of exchange and promissory notes. But the Bill is totally changed. The Bill not only asserts that promissory notes shall be exempt from the laws of usury, but that the laws of usury shall be totally done away with for all contracts. I am not aware that a more sweeping expression could possibly be used to cover every loan. If your Lordships have to decide on this Bill, it will not be, as was the object originally, to afford facilities for the negotiation of bills of exchange; but we shall have to decide whether we are prepared to enact that the laws regulating the interest of money shall be totally done away with, which is the object of the Bill. I will draw the attention of your Lordships to the manner in which the principle of the measure has gradually grown upon us. The original proposition was incorporated into the Bank charter; and it is, to provide that bills of exchange and promissory notes, not having more than three months to run, may be negotiated without reference to the usury laws. About two years ago, it was stated that a further extension of that principle was necessary, --that bills of exchange were in circulation of a longer date than three months, --and it was a great inconvenience that Bills coming from India should not be negotiable; and so a Bill was brought in to make these bills pass at any interest. That Bill was thought, quite a sufficient stretch of this principle. Afterwards my Noble Friend (Lord Lansdowne) introdu..

The Mirror of parliament

The notion of 'representative democracy' seems unquestionably familiar today, but how did the Victorians understand democracy, parliamentary representation, and diversity?

Mirror of Parliament

This is a reproduction of the original artefact. Generally these books are created from careful scans of the original. This allows us to preserve the book accurately and present it in the way the author intended. Since the original versions are generally quite old, there may occasionally be certain imperfections within these reproductions. We're happy to make these classics available again for future generations to enjoy!

The Mirror Of Parliament;

Trieste Publishing has a massive catalogue of classic book titles. Our aim is to provide readers with the highest quality reproductions of fiction and non-fiction literature that has stood the test of time. The many thousands of books in our collection have been sourced from libraries and private collections around the world. The titles that Trieste Publishing has chosen to be part of the collection have been scanned to simulate the original. Our readers see the books the same way that their first readers did decades or a hundred or more years ago. Books from that period are often spoiled by imperfections that did not exist in the original. Imperfections could be in the form of blurred text, photographs, or missing pages. It is highly unlikely that this would occur with one of our books. Our extensive quality control ensures that the readers of Trieste Publishing's books will be delighted with their purchase. Our staff has thoroughly reviewed every page of all the books in the collection, repairing, or if necessary, rejecting titles that are not of the highest quality. This process ensures that the reader of one of Trieste Publishing's titles receives a volume that faithfully reproduces the original, and to the maximum degree possible, gives them the experience of owning the original work. We pride ourselves on not only creating a pathway to an extensive reservoir of books of the finest quality, but also providing value to every one of our readers. Generally, Trieste books are purchased singly - on demand, however they may also be purchased in bulk. Readers interested in bulk purchases are invited to contact us directly to enquire about our tailored bulk rates.

The Mirror of Parliament, Volume 4

Excerpt from Constitutionalism of the Future: Or Parliament, the Mirror of the Nation IN the following pages I have maintained that the fruits of our labours are the chief sources of our rights; and nothing surely can be more appropriate than that I should dedicate such an argument to those who claim, by pre-eminence, to be the sons of toil. Nor is the case altered though I ascribe to this source those rights which we claim to have inherited from our fathers, and which we hope to transmit to our children, as well as those which our own hands or heads have won for us. That the family is the root of the state is a fact which I know is familiar to your minds. Much as you prize your rights as citizens, your rights as children and parents are dearer to you still; and from the latter the rights of inheritance are inseparable. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy.
