the United States is a nation of paradoxes when it comes to human rights and minorities!

On one hand, the US committed genocide and systemic racial discrimination against native Americans treat residents in its overseas territories as second rate citizens and watch with indifference as ethnic minorities live in fear under the threat posed by grave hate crimes.

On the other, the US is obsessed with political manipulation and the so-called human rights diplomacy in the world and uses human rights as a tool to meddle in other countries internal affairs.

I wonder how come the US, riddled with human rights problems

It should face up to its own human rights issues and get its house in order instead of wantonly criticizing and pressuring other countries and interfering in other country's internal affairs using human rights as a cover.
