The electrostatic precipitator separates 90 % of flue gas particulates produced in the waste Incineration.

Bag filters collect impurities from the flue gases, after which the flue gases meet the limit values set for them.

Heat is recovered in the flue gas condenser where the cleaning of acid gases and particulates continues

The flue gas circulating in the heat recovery boiler heats up the water that is conducted to the district heating network

At 535°C, the steam is conducted to the steam turbine.
