#206 The New Horizons For Data And Healthcare Are Exciting For Patients, with Kevin Ross - #206 The New Horizons For Data And Healthcare Are Exciting For Patients, with Kevin Ross by Data Futurology 25 views 1 year ago 36 minutes - Kevin Ross has had more than 20 years of experience in using data, science and analytics to lead decision-making. Now, as the ...

Introduction

Healthcare is starting to expect more from data expecting and technology and consumers are wanting focus on healthcare services and recommendations and for that to happen increasingly digitally. Is that what you're seeing and the space that you're excited about?

In terms of consumer expectations, how do they line up with your aims, or with your visions and company visions, and what you're trying to bring into the market? And then I'll ask you about some of the challenges that need to be overcome to bring the vision into reality.

What are some of the challenges to overcome in order to bring that vision? Closer to now?

One of the big topics, in the first one that you mentioned, is data availability. So part of it is, where is it? Is it captured or not? And then another part is, are we able to get to a link and use it? How are things looking from your perspective on those fronts?

How much does the healthcare, system in New, Zealand ...

How do we deliver better outcomes that are particularly helpful to those who need them the most and how do you do it without it costing more ideally cost to list it?

Can you tell me more about the model of your organization? Working with research corporates, how does the model work?

How can people and organizations get involved?
