Dead Frog's Don't Jump

During his 37 years in the martial arts-35 years of that time teaching-Master B.H. Wasmund, PhD, MaDSc., has developed a life philosophy that he shares with his students through simple yet insightful stories. Dead Frogs Don't Jump brings 59 of those tales to life as conversations between a master and a student. But you don't have to be a martial artist to enjoy the stories in this book. Everyone can benefit from their simple wisdom. Master Wasmund is a 7th-Degree Black Belt in Tae Kwon Do and Head Instructor of his own studio in Burlington, Wisconsin. Since 1976 he has guided 164 students to Black Belt, using conversations, analogies, and stories to present martial arts philosophy, just as Grand Master Ok Hyung Kim and Master Royal J. West guided him during his early years as a Black Belt. Master Wasmund is co-author of KyuKi Do, the official AKF Training Manual, and author of the AKF Guidebook for Instructors and Fragmented Man: Conversations with the Master, another collection of conversational stories.

Wood Frogs: Back from the Dead!

The history of science is often seen as a story of advancement but nothing could be further from the truth. Science, it is true, has progressed, but rarely in the direction intended and seldom for the reasons given. This has a lot to do with the people responsible. From the strange to the eccentric, meet Thales, credited as 'the father of science', whose only real claim to fame is that he often fell into ditches, discover how Archimedes never said Eureka and hated baths anyway and how the most lucrative ancient Greek invention was not democracy but the slot machine. Justin Pollard also fills us in on Issac Newton, who thought gravity was created by the Holy Spirit, how eleven people claimed to have invented the steam engine and why the first website was twelve foot across and made of wood.

The jumping frog [and other sketches] by Mark Twain

Theo is a quiet frog who shies away from the other pond animals, particularly toads. Encouraged by Piper, an old duck, he learns that to be different is okay and that he shouldn't be afraid to be himself – no matter what others say or do. Bouncer, the leader of the toad gang, has other ideas. He doesn't like Theo because he finds him strange and likes to embarrass the little frog whenever he can. Avoiding Bouncer is difficult, but soon Theo has got bigger things to worry about, as two men appear with something horrible in the back of their truck. Realising they are in grave danger, Theo comes up with a plan. It will need all the animals to help for it to succeed, including Bouncer and his gang. The only problem is that Theo will have to believe in himself and not be afraid of what anyone else thinks anymore. Will anyone listen to a 'crazy' frog? What if Bouncer and his gang try to stop him? Can Farmer Crisp help, or is it already too late?
