An Introduction to Simple Linear Regression

Regression analysis explores the relationship between a quantitative response variable and one or more explanatory variables.

Example: Can the density of Australian timber be used to predict its Janka

Can we use a known value of density (X) to help predict the hardness (Y)?

Example: Is there a relationship between scores on the empathic concern scale and pain-related brain activity?

Is there strong evidence of a relationship between the explanatory variable X and the response variable Y?

We will use sample data to obtain the estimated regression line

They Actually Reflected What People Thought the Relationships Ought To Be and Quite Often because of What We'Re Recognizing Now Is They Were Grounded in a Colonial Vision They Were Grounded in a Notion of Racial Hierarchy and They Are It They Are Infused with It in Many Many Ways So Even When the Cases Don't Talk about Race Even When the Parties Are Not Specifically Racialized There Is a Way in Which a Particular World Order Is Embodied in the Skin in the Rules That They Are Expounding So for Example We Could Take the Rule of First Possession the Rule of First Possession

There Is a Way in Which a Particular World Order Is Embodied in the Skin in the Rules That They Are Expounding So for Example We Could Take the Rule of First Possession the Rule of First Possession and Property Is One That We Sort Of Think of as Coming to Us from English Common Law but if We Stop and Think about Who Were the Actual First Possessors of the Property and the Ground upon Which We Stand We Can See that that Rule of First Possession Had a Big Carve out It Didn't Mean Indigenous People Even though They Were the First Possessors

' Sa Practicum notwithstanding What We Said about Practice and and Theory We Have a Place in the Curriculum That's Marked as a Practice Experience and It's Precisely in that Space As Well as the Others That We Trouble this Line and Today We'Li Talk about How She Does It in Her Own Course and Finally There's a Writing Requirement Where We Gives Us an Opportunity To Articulate in Scholarly Terms Their Sense of Their Anti-Racist World Their Sense of Doctrinal Rearticulation so that's Roughly the Way the Curriculum Is Structured To Get Students To Engage All the Issues That We Just Explored and To Take that with Them to Whatever Practice Context in Which They Find Themselves Thank You and Tendayi this Is a Great Place I Think To Bring In Your Own Work in Clinical Education and and Sort Of Allow Us To Put a Spotlight on that

But It's the Ways in Which those Engagements Fundamentally Shape the Way Students Understand Their Role as Lawyers the Complicity of Law and Producing Violations while Also Giving Them the Kinds of Skills That They Will Be Able To Transfer You Know once They Graduate and So the Thing That I Think Makes Us Work Exciting Is Again Resistance of this Idea that There's a World of Theory and a World of Praxis but Rather Saying that in every Act of Lawyering There Is a Theory of Change a Theory of Law a Theory of Justice That Is at Work How Do We Interrogate that in Ways That Undo Structures of Racial Subordination

As a Project That We'Li Have that Is both Going To Have To Be within Particular Kind of Institutional Forms and It's Going To Have To Challenge those Institutional Forms and the Reason I Say that Is the Process of Truth and Reconciliation in the South African Context Has Been Deeply Problematic and Limited in Terms of What It Actually Delivered and I'M Not Saying that To Say that It Had no Value I Would Not Say that but the Literature on this Is Actually Pretty Clear As Well as the Experience of People on the Ground about the Parameters of that Institutional Framework What Got Set outside of It What Was Permitted within It and the Ways in Which There Was a Problematic

It's Going To Require the Kind of Self-Examination That Most Institutions Have Resisted What We Have Tended To Have Is a Pitch to as I Say some Sort of Legal Reform and Then Retreat Back into the Same Structural Position I'Li Just Add Very Quickly Ooh What Cheryl and Hyundai I Said Made It Very Easy for Me It Seems to Me that in some Ways the Reconciliation Move Might Be the Easy One To Make that Is To Say I Am Interested in Knowing What the Predicates for Reconciliation Move Might Be Concretely

I Was Reading some some Work and and Speaking to People There Who Were Talking about Indigenous Approaches to Thinking about Transitioning in these Kinds of Contexts Might Actually Be a Better Place To Begin To Think about What Kind of Mechanism We Want and this I Think Is a Challenge to Lawyers To Think about How Our Very Kind of Ways of Understanding and Framing the Problems Themselves Are Steeped in the Structures We'Re Trying To Undo and Part of the Challenge Might Be Again Finding Completely Different Epistemic Sources for Thinking about What these Mechanisms Might Look like

Because It Goes to the Question of How Do We Think about the Existing Racial Baseline if We Think about the Existing Racial Baseline as Being One in Which Everyone Is Relatively Equal Then Taking Race into Account Obviously Is Constitutes some Kind of Preference but if We Think about the Existing Racial Baseline as Being Asymmetric and Structurally Unequal Then Taking Race into Account Becomes a Necessary Way of Doing any Kind of Meaningful Repair Now Admittedly the Supreme Court's Interpretation of Affirmative Action Has Pretty Much Watered that Down It Has Only Allowed for Consideration of a Firm of Action in Service of Diversity
