

Buddha Is As Buddha Does

#buddha #buddhist philosophy #enlightenment practice #spiritual development #ethical living buddhism

The insightful proverb, "Buddha Is As Buddha Does," profoundly articulates that genuine buddha nature and enlightenment are demonstrated through one's actions and conduct, rather than mere declarations or titles. This core tenet of buddhist philosophy emphasizes the vital role of spiritual practice and ethical living in manifesting wisdom and compassion in the world. It suggests that true spiritual development lies in embodying these teachings daily, making practical application the ultimate measure of one's path towards enlightenment.

He practised meditation, and developed his mind.

You are now to be the leader of the other monks

The number one assistant continued practising meditation in the forest.

When he arrived, he sat on a rug at the feet of the old monk.

Then he was ordained a monk and gave up his kingly life.

He has given up the burden of worrying about wealth

He advances in meditation to such inner peace

The old chief monk lived out the remainder of his life
