A journey through the US south by Simply Railway 183,837 views 2 years ago 30 minutes - Howdy folks, Welcome to this trip report onboard the Amtrak Crescent service between Greensboro, North Carolina and New ...

We are in front of the J. Douglas Galyon Depot. It was built in 1927 for the Southern Railway and reopened in 2005.

This is the waiting area with what seems to be some original wooden benches

There are two Viewliner sleeping cars on the Crescent, which are located behind me.

As always with Amtrak, the seatpitch is gigantic - you can't feel cramped!

There is also a footrest. I don't suggest you to use it if you want to sleep!

Here's the seat in a reclined position which makes it that much comfier.

It's 8:00 AM and our train was spotted nearby Atlanta. We can thank our friend Randy Dean for this wonderful footage!

We stopped 30 min in Atlanta. For many passengers, this is their final destination. Don't forget that the Crescent is the ONLY train serving Atlanta...a city of almost half a millions people...

We are now passing by the two sleeping cars, both are Viewliner I reviewed both accommodations on the Cardinal and Northeast Regional.

Oh wow...a sunrise, a P42 and the skyline of Atlanta? What else do you need?

Around 9:00am I decided to head to the Cate car and purchase my breakfast

We are now travelling across the deep United States South.

We are now crossing the state line between Georgia and Alabama Change your clocks, we are now in the Central Time zone!

Old barn, crazy weeds...

Anniston, AL

Sweet home Alabama...

We are approaching Birmingham, the largest city in Alabama.

Tuscaloosa, AL

As we go South, try to look down, you'll see more and more swamp around you We are definitely approaching the mighty Bayou

This is the Black Warrior River !
Tombigee River
Here's a typical Amfleet II coach. They are slightly different from the Amfleet I on the Northeast Regional
The Cafe car you saw earlier. After that are the two sleeping cars!
Boogie Woogie Amfleet
We are now in the state of Mississippi! The city of Meridian where you can admire some rusty old stock
We are still running on time while we are in the deep Bayou!
Right now we are only 30 miles away from New Orleans. We just need to cross the famous Lake Pontchartrain.
And there you go...
On the other side is a massive bridge that's part of Interstate 10
We are now on the other bank...
And approaching the city of New Orleans!
Amtrak locomotive shops
We arrived in New Orleans with a delay of 32 minutes, which is totally acceptable considering the long and often delayed journey
