Download for FREE with Kindle Unlimited This is a 25,000 words EROTIC stand-alone story with an HEA, so no cliff-hangers! "When Layla finds herself kidnapped by a man from an alien planet, she does not expect to find pity for him. He is of the "Lessers" on his planet, forced to fight for his life in an arena, for the entertainment of proper citizens. Lessers must find a second from another planet to fight with them. Layla agrees to fight, and finds much more than that. She falls in love with Morgan, and begins a second life on the planet of Frank, becoming a celebrity warrior couple in the arena. But when the circumstances of their relationship change, they both know that their lives must also change. They cannot remain in the arena forever. They must escape. But will they be able to stay away? Or will the vicious Prime Minister Morbin best them in the end?" -----

EXCERPT FROM BOOK A light popped on in the warehouse. Layla rubbed her eyes, but they were not playing tricks on her. There was definitely a light on in the warehouse. There were still functioning lights, electricity? It was a low, floor window, but the light was undoubtedly on. It flickered like a badly connected incandescent, but it was there. The flickering light reflected in her eyes, Layla stood up at her desk and walked around it and out the front door of the agency. She walked across the street and towards the warehouse, expecting at any moment for the light to turn off, for it to be in her imagination, or for someone to pop out and tell her she was on a prank TV show. But none of these things happened. Instead, as her steps drew closer and closer, when she was nearly on top of it, everything remained very much the same, and very much tangibly real. The window was barred and only a few inches from the parking lot's surface. Layla kneeled down, and then laid flat on her stomach so that she could look effectively through the window. What greeted her through the window was too much to believe. There was no electric light on, but there was light. There was a floating orb near the window. It was giving off light, but attached to nothing. It bobbed gently up and down, causing what Layla had thought was flickering. It seemed to have a mind of its own. The light having a mind of its own was further confirmed by the man who spoke to it. "Stop bobbing so much. You're making it difficult for me to fix this. Just stay still." The man's back was turned, and he was in the corner, working on something. There was a toolbox open next to him on the floor. Layla watched as he held out his hand near the box, and a tool shot into it as if by magic. She rubbed her eyes once more, confirming only that she was tired, but not hallucinating. Layla was watching something otherworldly happen in the warehouse. AUTHOR'S NOTE: This is a 8,000 words stand-alone story with an HEA, so no cliff-hangers! Story contains mature themes and language, and is intended for 18+ readers only.

Lost to the Alien Lord

I signed up for a research mission with five other women. Instead, we crashed on an alien planet with too many dangers to count. Separated from the other women, I'm on my own until a huge alien with color-changing skin and a massive sword gets me out of a bad spot. I don't understand Savair's language, but I think he's under the impression that I'm his. I am NOT his. I'm a divorced scientist with no time for such nonsense. But if he can help me find the others in my group then perhaps I can play at being "his" for a while. It's not a hardship. He's the sexiest male I've ever met with a jawline to die for, but there's no way I'll fall for this guy. Nope. Not a chance... Jetta makes me ache. I desire her the moment I pull her from a Brakken meat trap. Her soft, warm body awakens hungers long banked. But my Sola, the living ship I am bound to, is dying, and thus, so am I. I must find a way to save my Sola and my mate, or none of us will survive. This is book one of the Lords of Destra series. Each is a complete story with no cliffhangers or cheating. My books always have consent and a happy ending. Cheers!

Xul

Athena wakes up in hell. Well...it's an alien slave ship, but it might as well be hell because she only has three choices. Mate. Become a sex slave. Or be killed. Great options. Desperate for freedom, a chance for survival is presented in the handsome rogue alien called Xul. But Xul is caught up in problems of his own and a mission he cannot afford to let fail-one that could be easily compromised if he dared open his heart. That doesn't leave her with many options and it doesn't help that she finds him utterly frustrating... ..and strong, hot, irresistible... She shouldn't really be thinking about him like that. Should she? Xul is a standalone read that contains delightfully steamy scenes with a guaranteed happily ever after, possessive alpha males, and strong female leads. There is no forced mating between the hero and heroine and no cliffhanger. It is the first book in the Captured by Aliens sci-fi alien romance series. Buy Xul today! A new galaxy awaits.

Bound to the Alien Lord

My research ship crashed, stranding me on an alien planet with no hope of rescue. When I'm captured by frightening, green aliens and given to Graef, a brooding, scythe-wielding Destran male with chameleon-like skin and the darkest eyes I've ever seen, I don't know whether to cower before him or kiss him. I've spent my life puzzling out the human psyche, but can I get through Graef's formidable walls? I am Graef, lord of my living, symbiotic ship and protector of the Destran population living in it. I have enough problems trying to free my ship from the rocky crevice it's trapped in. I am not pleased when I'm presented with a "gift" of a frightened human female by the locals. I have no use for the small, alien female, but I can't send her into the dangerous wilds where she'll be killed. What am I to do with the beautiful woman with the dark blue eyes and a smile that lights up my dark world? As enemies close in with plans to take over Graef's ship and extract the powerful drug it produces, Graef and Lexi must find a way to hold them off and free the ship, but little do they know the devastating monster coiling beneath the seething mountain itself, threatening to devour everything in its path. This is book two of the Lords of Destra series. Each is a complete story with no cliffhangers or cheating. My books always have consent and a happy ending. Cheers!

Alien's Wild Mate

This strange alien has awakened an even stranger desire inside me. I love adventure and living on the land. But getting abducted and abandoned on an alien planet is a little too much adventure, even for me. This planet is chock full of barbarians and outlaws... and one noble alien who looks at me like I'm everything. The problem? He's a pirate, and he needs to get his ship back from his traitorous crew. He sees how good I am on the land and wants my help. If I do, he'll take me back to Earth. But the more time I spend with him, the less certain I am that Earth is where I want to be... This odd, primitive female entices me in a way I'd never imagined. Betrayed by my second-in-command, I was dumped in the woods and left to die. While my crew searches for a rumored shipment of rare and valuable human females, I encounter the very thing they are looking for: a strange, primitive earthling. Although she knows nothing of the universe, she can make fire with just her hands and treat my wounds without a medkit. But the oddest thing of all is the way she makes my third heart beat and my mating urges awaken... Alien's Wild Mate is a standalone book in the Outlaw Planet Mates series. The books can be read in any order. No cliffhangers, no cheating, and a guaranteed HEA!

The Resonance of Unseen Things

The Resonance of Unseen Things offers an ethnographic meditation on the “uncanny” persistence and cultural freight of conspiracy theory. The project is a reading of conspiracy theory as an index of a certain strain of late 20th-century American despondency and malaise, especially as understood by people experiencing downward social mobility. Written by a cultural anthropologist with a literary background, this deeply interdisciplinary book focuses on the enduring American preoccupation with captivity in a rapidly transforming world. Captivity is a trope that appears in both ordinary and fantastic iterations here, and Susan Lepselter shows how multiple troubled histories—of race, class, gender, and power—become compressed into stories of uncanny memory. “We really don’t have anything like this in terms of a focused, sympathetic, open-minded ethnographic study of UFO experiencers. . . . The author’s semiotic approach to the paranormal is immensely productive, positive, and, above all, resonant with what actually happens in history.” —Jeffrey J. Kripal, J. Newton Rayzor Professor of Religion, Rice University “Lepselter relates a weave of intimate alien sensibilities in out-of-the-way places which are surprisingly, profoundly, close to home. Readers can expect to share her experience of contact with complex logics of feeling, and to do so in a contemporary America they may have thought they understood.” —Debbora Battaglia, Mount Holyoke College “An original and beautifully written study of contemporary American cultural poetics. . . . The book convincingly brings into relief the anxieties of those at the margins of American economic and civic life, their perceptions of state power, and the narrative continuities that bond them to histories of violence and expansion in the American West.” —Deirdre de la Cruz, University of Michigan

Humiliation, Degradation, Dehumanization

Degradation, dehumanization, instrumentalization, humiliation, and nonrecognition – these concepts point to ways in which we understand human beings to be violated in their dignity. Violations of human dignity are brought about by concrete practices and conditions; some commonly acknowledged, such as torture and rape, and others more contested, such as poverty and exclusion. This volume collates reflections on such concepts and a range of practices, deepening our understanding of human dignity and its violation, bringing to the surface interrelationships and commonalities, and pointing to the values that are thereby shown to be in danger. In presenting a streamlined discussion from a negative perspective, complemented by conclusions for a positive account of human dignity, the book is at once a contribution to the body of literature on what dignity is and how it should be protected as well as constituting an alternative, fresh and focused perspective relevant to this significant recurring debate. As the concept of human dignity itself crosses disciplinary boundaries, this is mirrored in the unique range of perspectives brought by the book's European and American contributors – in philosophy and ethics, law, human rights, literature, cultural studies and interdisciplinary research. This volume will be of interest to social and moral philosophers, legal and human rights theorists, practitioners and students.

Life and Adventures of Joaquin Murieta

In 1854, a Cherokee Indian called Yellow Bird (better known as John Rollin Ridge) launched in this book the myth of Joaquin Murieta, based on the California criminal career of a 19th century Mexican bandit. Today this folk hero has been written into state histories, sensationalized in books, poems, and articles throughout America, Spain, France, Chile, and Mexico, and made into a motion picture. The Ridge account is here reproduced from the only known copy of the first edition, owned by Thomas W. Streeter, of Morristown, New Jersey. According to it, the passionate, wronged Murieta organized an outlaw company numbering over 2,000 men, who for two years terrorized gold-rush Californians by kidnapping, bank robberies, cattle thefts, and murders. So bloodthirsty as to be considered five men, Joaquin was aided by several hardy subordinates, including the sadistic cutthroat, "Three-Fingered Jack." Finally, the state legislature authorized organization of the Mounted Rangers to capture the outlaws. The drama is fittingly climaxed by the ensuing chase, "good, gory" battle, and the shocking fate of the badmen.

Unthought

N. Katherine Hayles is known for breaking new ground at the intersection of the sciences and the humanities. In Unthought, she once again bridges disciplines by revealing how we think without thinking—how we use cognitive processes that are inaccessible to consciousness yet necessary for it to function. Marshalling fresh insights from neuroscience, cognitive science, cognitive biology, and literature, Hayles expands our understanding of cognition and demonstrates that it involves more than consciousness alone. Cognition, as Hayles defines it, is applicable not only to nonconscious processes in humans but to all forms of life, including unicellular organisms and plants. Startlingly, she also shows that cognition operates in the sophisticated information-processing abilities of technical systems: when humans and cognitive technical systems interact, they form “cognitive assemblages”—as found in urban traffic control, drones, and the trading algorithms of finance capital, for instance—and these assemblages are transforming life on earth. The result is what Hayles calls a “planetary cognitive ecology,” which includes both human and technical actors and which poses urgent questions to humanists and social scientists alike. At a time when scientific and technological advances are bringing far-reaching aspects of cognition into the public eye, Unthought reflects deeply on our contemporary situation and moves us toward a more sustainable and flourishing environment for all beings.

Discipline and Punish

A brilliant work from the most influential philosopher since Sartre. In this indispensable work, a brilliant thinker suggests that such vaunted reforms as the abolition of torture and the emergence of the modern penitentiary have merely shifted the focus of punishment from the prisoner's body to his soul.
