Organic Chemistry - McMurry Chapter 11: Substitution & Elimination Reactions - Organic Chemistry - McMurry Chapter 11: Substitution & Elimination Reactions by Paul Young 5,946 views 9 years ago 1 hour, 29 minutes - Lecture recording for Chapter 11 in John McMurry's Organic Chemistry,; Substitution & Elimination Reactions.

Chapter 11 "Alkyl Halides. Substitution & Elimination Reactions."

The polarization of the molecule makes the (partially positive) carbon reactive with nucleophiles (positive- seeking reagents, for example, anions).

An example of a simple substitution reaction occurring at a primary carbon is the reaction of bromoethane with methoxide anion.

Possible mechanisms for the reaction include a direct frontside displacement...

The preference for backside attack can also be explained by examination of the highest occupied, and lowest unoccupied molecular orbitals of the reactants.

In order for reaction to occur, electrons in the highest occupied molecular orbital (HOMO) of cyanide anion must overlap with the lowest unoccupied molecular orbital (LUMO) of bromomethane.

Inspection of the LUMO on the carbon atom shown that the largest lobe is directed away from the bromine, on the backside of the molecule.

Another good nucleophile in an SN2 reaction is the alkyne anion, which can be prepared by treating an alkyne with a strong base

What we have said about substitution reactions thus far, is valid for primary and secondary alkyl halides. With tertiary halides, however

Further, the slow step in the reaction is the formation of the carbocation... the reaction with methoxide anion is very fast.

Carbocations that are resonance stabilized are typically more stable than tertiary carbocations.
