Little Interest In Spain

This book is a cheerful record of two couples' unforeseen migration to inland Alicante. Before sisters, Sue and Linda acquire a townhouse on the slopes they have little interest in Spain, however, on going out to see their new belonging they start to warm to investing energy there with their spouses Paul and Bill. After a pleasant summer occasion, the possibility of living in the town becomes overpowering and this book depicts their progress from guests to inhabitants and the assorted determination of individuals they meet en route. This entertaining and enlightening diary is an ideal perused for those intrigued by the prospects of expat life in rustic Spain.

Holidays in Spain

Excerpt from Holidays in Spain: Being Some Account of Two Tours in That Country in the Autumns of 1880 and 1881 The following pages grew out of some notes taken during two tours in Spain in the autumns of 1880 and 1881 and as the perusal of what I had set down had proved of some interest to a few of my own immediate friends, I ventured to think that it might perhaps be made acceptable to a wider circle of readers. For this purpose I took seriously in hand the always agreeable task of revising, pruning, and recasting what I had written; and I now venture to submit my notes, in the shape they have finally assumed, to the tender mercies of an indulgent public. Holidays to Spain and the Facts of Enjoying Them

The information you receive with this purchase were never published in this form! I worked for eleven years in the tourism industry in Spain, and of that five in one of the most renowned hotel chains. Since I had to witness every day, how foreign tourists are treated in comparison with Spanish tourists (I had to deal with these cases!), I have now decided to publish this information. This in the hope that it will sooner or later bring an improvement if the hoteliers see that the foreign guests know the rules and no longer can be cheated like that. It's just the way it is, that foreign tourists are being cheated, because they do not know the laws. Spaniards get awarded almost everything when they complain, and foreigners are dismissed with trifles, or a shrug! The only reason is, that as a foreigner, you don't know the tricks (laws) and therefore do not know how to apply pressure. If you know how, you can get almost anything as compensation, and in certain cases, have to pay no money or advance funds, which they then may or may not get back to you. At least you get what you deserve. You have paid 100% of the money, so you are entitled to 100% performance! * How to deal with overbooking. * The action you must take in case of theft. * How to deal with noisy neighbors. * What kind of action you need to take immediately if you got ripped off at a store, the item you bought is broken, a fake copy, or was too expensive. * What you have to do if the food was horrible at a restaurant and you had to wait an hour for it. * What you can do if the flowers ordered at the hotel were not in your room at the right time. * What should you do if my clothes were ruined by the hotel laundry service? Etc., Etc. This information will help you during your next holiday, to get what you deserve. It is quite possible that you, for example in the event of an accident, can save a few hundred euros. Or you are not taking it, that they do not reload the buffet properly. Do not let it happen, that because they have too few staff members, that you have to wait for half an hour or longer on your drinks. In any case, you have all the information available, that Spanish citizens have. Spaniards use this information as leverage in any injustice, don't let yourself "be taken for fools" any longer. Be a insider!
