Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts (1) We have not used OCR (Optical Character Recognition), as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. (2) In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images, so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy.

This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1897 edition. Excerpt: ... CHAPTER XIV. THE DROWNED LANDS. "Seekest thou the plash y brink Of weedy lake, or marge of river wide, Or where the rocking billows rise and sink On the chafed oceanis side? "And soon thy toil shall end, Soon shalt thou find a summer home and rest, And scream among thy fellows--reeds shall bend Soon o'er thy sheltered nest." Bryant. For some time past, on the mainland, we had been noticing the signs of the departing year, and at Bonda Key these indications became more marked and numerous. The air had not lost its balsam or the leaf its colour, yet there were other shadows on nature's dial slighter in appearance, but as true in reality. The ear missed the whir in the evening air of those summer insects, whose short lives had already terminated. The eye saw a clearness in the atmosphere that brought objects several miles distant apparently near at hand, and sometimes elevated them above the horizon. Some birds that wore in summer the livery of the rainbow had apparelled themselves in plainer garments, and from day to day new arrivals among migratory tribes of the air would recall the mind to those northern hills where the jagged pine and lichen rock were already grey with the first flurry of snow. We were all standing one morning at the " creak o' day," on the island, watching the first effects of the sun before its rising, and noting the little indications of the progress nature had made during the night. Thus travellers at sea will come forth early in the morning, and for a few minutes scan the ocean and ship, and note the bearings and the winds before they turn to the regular thoughts and occupations of the day. "See those ducks coming?" said Jackson. "Where?" "Close by the mainland, sir, low down." "Yes! they are coming this way, ...

WILD SPORTS IN THE SOUTH OR TH

Excerpt from Wild Sports in the South: Or, of the Camp-Fires of the Everglades The larger portion of the Sketches contained in this volume were contributions made by the Author to The Spirit of the Times, a few years ago, under the title of Camp-Fire Stories, and as some of them have been floating about in other papers, this statement seems necessary, lest the reader may regard these twice-told tales as lacking in originality. Nothing more is claimed for this volume than that it contains pleasant reminiscences of hunting life and adventure in the peninsula of Florida, and counterparts of tales, some of them remembered, some of them fancied, that frontier hunters tell when assembled at night around their camp-fires. The Author does not ask that each story shall be regarded as having occurred literally as written; but he believes the spirit of the tales, the description of natural scenery, and the fragments of Indian history to be correct, and he has carefully striven not to offend the keen observation and long experience of his hunting comrades at the South whose eyes will scrutinize these pages, by any allusion to natural history which is not exactly true. If the book will recall the Author pleasantly to their minds, or awaken the remembrance of grand old sports and merry camp-fires in the States of the South, its object is attained. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. Stewart Edward White (1873-1946), an American author, was born in Grand Rapids, Michigan. He earned degrees from University of Michigan (Ph. D., 1895; M. A., 1903). From about 1900 until about 1922, he wrote adventure travel books. Starting in 1922, He and his wife Elizabeth "Betty" Grant White wrote numerous books they claimed were received through channelling with spirits. They also wrote of their travells around the state of California. His works include: The Claim Jumpers (1901), Conjuror's House: A Romance of the Free Forest (1903), The Forest (1903), Blazed Trail Stories, and Stories of the Wild Life (1904), The Mountains (1904), The Silent Places (1904), Arizona Nights (1907), The Riverman (1908), The Rules of the Game (1910), The Land of Footprints (1912), The Sign at Six (1912), African Camp Fires (1913), The Gray Dawn (1915), The Leopard Woman (1916), The Forty- Niners: A Chronicle of the California Trail and El Dorado (1918), and The Killer (1919).

Camp-Fires and Guide-Posts

A lively, thought-provoking collection of essays and poems that represent diverse perspectives on national parks and trails. -- Kristen Rabe Foreword Reviews Features stories from Grand Canyon, Everglades, Olympic, Glacier, and Joshua Tree National Parks and the Appalachian and Pacific Crest National Scenic Trails Includes a diverse range of writers Inspired by America's beloved national parks, Campfire Stories Volume II is a collection of modern prose, poetry, folklore, and more, featuring commissioned, new, and existing works from a diverse group of writers who share a deep appreciation of the natural world. While the original Campfire Stories captured many historic tales reflecting the first 100 years of the National Park Service, this completely new collection, focused on five different parks (plus two long-distance trails), depicts the parks as we know and experience them today. Contributors represent a range of rich and diverse voices, including from the BIPOC and LGBTQ+ communities. Award winners such as Lauret Savoy, Rae DelBianco, and Terry Tempest Williams; newer voices including Derick Lugo, Rosette Royale, and Ed Bok Lee; and even a poet laureate, Rena Priest--all share their unique perspectives on our national parks and trails. These new campfire stories revel in each park's distinct landscape and imaginatively transport the reader to the warm edge of a campfire ring.

Camp-fire and Wigwam

"Six veteran woodsmen and hunters sit around the camp fire every night of their canoe trip, and tell of their adventures in all parts of the world by land and water."--Publisher's ad.

Camp-Fires on Desert and Lava

"For more than a quarter-century, despite the admirable excavations that have unearthed such humorists as John Gorman Barr and Marcus Lafayette, the most significant of the humorists from the Old Southwest have remained the same: Crockett, Longstreet, Thompson, Baldwin, Thorpe, Hooper, Robb, Harris, and Lewis. Forming a kind of shadow canon in American literature that led to Mark Twain's early work, from 1834 to 1867 these authors produced a body of writing that continues to reward attentive readers." "James H. Justus's Fetching the Old Southwest examines this writing in the context of other discourses contemporaneous with it: travel books, local histories, memoirs, and sports manuals, as well as unpublished private forms such as personal correspondence, daybooks, and journals. Like most writing, humor is a product of its place and time, and the works studied herein are no exception. The antebellum humorists provide an important look into the social and economic conditions that were prevalent in the southern "new country," a place that would, in time, become the Deep South." "While previous books about Old Southwest humor have focused on individual authors, Justus has produced the first critical study to encompass all of the humor from this time period. Teachers and students of literary history will appreciate the incredible range of documentation, both primary and secondary."--BOOK JACKET. Sparks from the Camp Fire

"The Camp Fire Girls Across the Seas" by Margaret Vandercook is an adventurous and culturally enriching story that follows a group of Camp Fire Girls on an international journey filled with excitement, learning, and personal growth. In this captivating narrative, the Camp Fire Girls embark on a unique and eye-opening trip across the seas to explore different countries and cultures. Led by their dedicated leader, the girls are exposed to a world beyond their own, where they encounter new languages, traditions, and customs. The story introduces readers to a diverse group of girls, each with her own distinct personality and interests. As they travel to various countries, including Europe and Asia, they immerse themselves in the local cultures, make new friends, and learn valuable life lessons. Throughout their adventures, the Camp Fire Girls embrace the spirit of curiosity, openness, and cultural exchange. They discover the beauty of different landscapes, savor exotic foods, and engage in meaningful interactions with people from around the world. The leader of the Camp Fire Girls serves as a mentor and guide, emphasizing the values of respect, tolerance, and global awareness. She encourages the girls to step out of their comfort zones, overcome challenges, and develop a deeper understanding of the world and its diversity. As the girls navigate the complexities of travel and encounter unexpected obstacles, they demonstrate resilience, adaptability, and teamwork. These experiences help them grow not only as individuals but also as responsible and compassionate global citizens. "The Camp Fire Girls Across the Seas" is a story of adventure, friendship, and cultural appreciation. It encourages young readers to embrace the idea of exploring new horizons, fostering cross-cultural connections, and becoming more open-minded individuals.
