Reports of Cases Argued and Determined in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania

Excerpt from Cases Argued and Adjudged in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, Vol. 1 There is a rule of evidence that a party shall produce the best evidence which the case admits of. In practice, however, there are very many exceptions. Where a deed is acknowledged, or a depo sition taken before a man who states himself to be a justice of the peace, the deed is recorded or read in court, and so is a deposition, though we have not the best evidence, nor any evidence that the man who certified it was a justice of the peace. Copies of the returns of surveys under seal for the surveyor-general's office, are, and have been received, and the commission of the deputy-surveyor who made them is not asked for, any more than the justices of the peace above stated. The boundaries of a surveyor's district are also taken from report, as well as the fact of his being a deputy surveyor; if either is contested, notice is given before the trial, or the party contesting the authority comes with a copy of the commission to some other person, and with proof that the land was actually out of the district. See the commission of a sheriff, or proof that the writ was executed within his county is not required - if denied, the truth may be inquired into. The sheriff and deputy-surveyor generally have assistants, and the authority to the deputy-sheriff, or assistant to the surveyor, is scarcely ever in writing; I will say never where the person is generally employed. If a man who has never been engaged to make a survey for the officer, is wanted to make a single survey, he may be requested in writing. In some instances, there are several persons who act as assistants to the deputy-surveyor, and when they continue to act in that capacity for a long time, this is as generally known as it is known who is the deputy-surveyor of the county.
