Intro

EVALUATIONS Peer evaluations are a key component of the assessment stage because they lead to higher levels of workload sharing, cooperation, and performance.

COORDINATION Also, team coordination and feedback improve when peers monitor the performance of all other members in the team. This, leads to the recognition of errors and to taking actions to correct these errors quickly.

PEERS Peer evaluations can also include team members nominating someone else as the review period's most valuable performer (MVP).

COMMITMENT Involvement of each team member in the performance assessment process increases the members' ownership and commitment to the system.

BIAS Like any time we are evaluating others, the assessment phase is prone to biases.

INDIVIDUAL As in the case of measures of individual performance, measures of team performance should include both results and behaviors.

EFFECTIVENESS This is the degree to which results satisfy team customers and stakeholders, including both internal and external customers.

EFFICIENCY This is the degree to which internal team processes support the achievement of results, team growth, and team member satisfaction.
