Travels in West Africa

Travels in southern Africa

Supported by a family inheritance that gave her £500 a year, Mary Henrietta Kingsley traveled to Africa to complete the book her father had started. The subject was the culture of Africa and Kingsley stayed with local people while she learned to survive in the African jungles, studied cannibal tribes, discovered new species of fish, and climbed Mount Cameroon by a route untouched by any European before her. Kingsley's ideas greatly influenced European ideas about Africa and the African people and her 1897 account, Travels in West Africa, quickly became a best-seller.

Travels in West Africa

This is an account of Mary Kingsley's travels in West Africa. It is illustrated with many 19th century black and white photographs and is written in an engaging and often humorous style. The author claims that this abridged version of the 800 page original "must be better than it was, for there is less of it."

Travels in Western Africa, in 1845 & 1846

Travels in West Africa(Congo Francais, Corisco and Cameroons)Mary H. KingsleyTo my brother, C. G. Kingsley this book is dedicated.Relateth the various causes which impelled the author to embark upon the voyage.It was in 1893 that, for the first time in my life, I found myself in possession of five or six months which were not heavily forestalled, and feeling like a boy with a new half-crown, I lay about in my mind, as Mr. Bunyan would say, as to what to do with them. "Go and learn your tropics," said Science. Where on earth am I to go? I wondered, for tropics are tropics wherever found, so I got down an atlas and saw that either South America or West Africa must be my destination, for the Malayan region was too far off and too expensive. Then I got Wallace's Geographical Distribution and after reading that master's article on the Ethiopian region I hardened my heart and closed with West Africa. I did this the more readily because while I knew nothing of the practical condition of it, I knew a good deal both by tradition and report of South East America, and remembered that Yellow Jack was endemic, and that a certain naturalist, my superior physically and mentally, had come very near getting starved to death in the depressing society of an expedition slowly perishing of want and miscellaneous fevers up the Parana.

Trieste Publishing has a massive catalogue of classic book titles. Our aim is to provide readers with the highest quality reproductions of fiction and non-fiction literature that has stood the test of time. The many thousands of books in our collection have been sourced from libraries and private collections around the world. The titles that Trieste Publishing has chosen to be part of the collection have been scanned to simulate the original. Our readers see the books the same way that their first readers did decades or a hundred or more years ago. Books from that period are often spoiled by imperfections that did not exist in the original. Imperfections could be in the form of blurred text, photographs, or missing pages. It is highly unlikely that this would occur with one of our books. Our extensive quality control ensures that the readers of Trieste Publishing's books will be delighted with their purchase. Our staff has thoroughly reviewed every page of all the books in the collection, repairing, or if necessary, rejecting titles that are not of the highest quality. This process ensures that the reader of one of Trieste Publishing's titles receives a volume that faithfully reproduces the original, and to the maximum degree possible, gives them the experience of owning the original work. We pride ourselves on not only creating a pathway to an extensive reservoir of books of the finest quality, but also providing value to every one of our readers. Travels in the Interior of Southern Africa

"Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa" by David Livingstone: Embark on an extraordinary expedition with the legendary explorer and missionary David Livingstone in "Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa." This timeless classic recounts Livingstone's epic journey through the heart of the African continent, providing a riveting narrative that blends missionary zeal with scientific exploration. Livingstone's vivid accounts transport readers into the diverse landscapes and cultures of Southern Africa, unveiling the challenges and triumphs encountered during his groundbreaking travels. From the mighty Zambezi River to the vast Kalahari Desert, each page reveals the untamed beauty and inherent complexities of the African continent. As a missionary, Livingstone's narrative intertwines with his quest to spread Christianity, offering a unique perspective on the intersection of faith and exploration. The author's meticulous observations of geography, wildlife, and the impact of the slave trade provide invaluable insights into 19th-century Africa. "Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa" is a literary testament to Livingstone's indomitable spirit, humanitarian vision, and passion for discovery. Whether you seek adventure, cultural exploration, or a glimpse into historical Africa, Livingstone's compelling narrative stands as a remarkable window into a bygone era of exploration and missionary zeal.

Excerpt from Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa: Including a Sketch of Sixteen Years' Residence in the Interior of Africa Greater smoothness of diction, and a saving of time, might have been secured by the employment of a person accustomed to compilation; but my journals having been kept for my own private purposes, no one else could have made use of them, or have entered with intelligence into the circumstances in which I was placed in Africa, far from any European companion. Those who have never carried a book through the press can form no idea of the amount of toil it involves. The process has increased my respect for authors and authoresses a thousand-fold. Travels in South Africa

David Livingstone (1813-1873) was a Scottish missionary and explorer in Africa. Missionary Travels in South Africa is his account of his second expedition, in 1853. His purpose was to abolish the slave trade by opening the continent to Christian commerce and missionaries. Livingstone walked over 4,000 miles, from Cape Town, South Africa through the Kalahari Desert and west to the coastal town of Loanda. He then turned east, followed the Zambesi River, and ended his travels in Mozambique. He reached the east coast at Quelimane, in Portuguese East Africa (now Mozambique), in 1856. Livingstone was a keen observer with wide-ranging interests. He was fascinated, for instance, upon seeing his first ostrich: "When the ostrich is feeding his pace is from twenty to twenty-two inches; when walking, but not feeding,

A Popular Account of Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa

Excerpt from Travels in the Interior of South Africa, Vol. 1 of 2: Comprising Fifteen Years Hunting and Trading; With Journeys Across the Continent From Natal to Walvis Bay, and Visits to Lake to and the Victoria Falls The narratives of Travel comprehended within these volumes extend, as will be seen, over a lengthened period, and cover a wide area of the African continent. With, indeed, a single great and striking exception - whose name is on everyone's lips, and whose fate engages at the present moment the hopeful expectations of civilized mankind in every quarter of the globe - no traveller can pretend to an acquaintance with the interior of Southern Africa, from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Indian Ocean, and from the Cape to the Zambesi, so prolonged in duration, and so varied in range, as the Author of these volumes. If Mr. Chapman's records of personal experience, acquired in the pursuits of the hunter and trader, lay for the most part no claim to the merits that belong to original investigation or discovery, they at least embody the results of prolonged and intelligent observation, directed, during many years, towards regions, many of which have hitherto been seldom visited by civilized man, and towards native races whose social life presents a highly interesting problem of inquiry to all.
