Introduction to Games People Play by Eric Berne, M.D.

Every person has three ego states: Parent, Adult and Child.

Games are predictable interactions between ego states.

Some games are designed to last a lifetime.

Spouses often play games with each other.

Social gatherings often make people play games.

Sexual relationships often provoke games.

People with rule-breaking tendencies often play games.

Psychotherapy offers plenty of room for games.

A life without games offers an opportunity for closer relationships.

Fundamental Techniques in Handling People

Give honest and sincere appreciation

Appeal to another person's interest

Smile

Remember that a person's name is

Be a good listener Encourage others to talk about themselves

Talk in terms of the other person's interest

Make the other person feel important and do it sincerely
The only way to get the best of an argument is to avoid it
Begin in a friendly way
If you are wrong admit it quickly and emphatically
Let the other person do a great deal of talking
Honestly try to see things from the other person's point of view
Be sympathetic to the other person's ideas and desires
Start with questions to which the other person will answer "yes"
Let the other person feel that the idea is his or hers
Appeal to the nobler motive
Dramatize your ideas
Throw down a challenge
Final part of this book is about changing people without
Talk about your own mistakes before criticizing the other person
Ask questions instead of giving orders
Let the person save the face
Make the fault seem easy to correct
