The History of Erie County, Pennsylvania

Erie County, Pennsylvania, is an interesting mixture of peaceful rural landscapes and vigorous industrial scenes. From Albion, Girard, and Fairview in the west, through Waterford and Edinboro, to Corry, Wattsburg, North East, Harborcreek, and Lawrence Park in the east, this volume touches upon many of the small towns, villages, and rural areas that make up this diverse county. The book's images, many never before published, have been selected by local historians and taken from local historical societies' archives to represent the social and cultural aspects of each community. From these pictures, mainly taken in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century, the distinct identity of each area comes alive with views of farmlands, businesses, schools, and recreation, yet despite this individuality, these unique communities do share much in common in tradition and personality.

Excerpt from Popular History of Erie County, Pennsylvania: A Condensed Stetch of the State, Complete History of the County; Its Cities, Villages, Townships; Educational and Industrial Development; And Biographies of Prominent Men; Statistica, Political, and Miscellaneous Matter A historian, from the nature of his work, cannot be original. He is compelled to quote, either in words or in fact. He may narrate in his own words but as he is reproducing an oft told tale, must necessarily somewhere, encroach upon the language of earlier sketchers. Hence while we are under obligations, to scores of former writers, upon the subjects under discussion; and have referred to an hundred books, as well as numerous manuscripts and records, we are under no particular Obligation to any individual, excepting as a matter of courtesy, and all who have in any manner aided in this work, alike have the sincere thanks of the author. The first duty of an historian is to ascertain and record facts. To narrate a succession of events, in a correct and concise manner, as a plain unvarnished tale, has been the effort of the writer in the following pages. NO attempt has been made at word painting nor to relate interesting reminiscences. Extensive re search has been made, both of original and printed documents, with the simple and in view to secure and record, reliable facts. Individuals, have to do, with county state and national matters and in that. Sense are a part of history. Biographical notes, given with strict reference to fact, are important in establishing dates and occurrences, but when filled with gush and fulsome praise are not only unimportant but nauseating. Shorn of these however, brief biographical notes are valuable historical pointers and as such we have not only made mention of William Penn and all the governors of this State, but the principal actors in Erie County history. In City, Village and Township history will be found brief biographies of the leading f-amilies, whether such per mns have subscribed for this work or not.
