Sweet Surprise

Flora Buchanan doesn't think a relationship is an option. A variety of mental health issues—anxiety, OCD, and PTSD—make it seem impossible to find love. Instead, she seeks joy in the one thing that is safe and ordered: her sweetshop in Glasgow. Mack Sharkey is ready to start a new life after being released from jail. As part of the infamous Sharkey family, she took care of business on the edge of the law for the once criminal, and now legitimate, empire. After being sentenced to jail time her cousin should have shared, she's promised a quiet life running her dream barbershop. Flora and Mack are bound together by a night that changed their lives two years before and never thought they'd ever see each other again. But when Mack opens up her barbershop right next to Flora's sweetshop, their connection comes roaring back. Content advisory: This book contains instances of violence against women.

"Why is there a cow on that pretty woman's porch?" Kash has lived his entire life at a breakneck speed. When he finds out he has a daughter, that comes to a screeching halt. He is the only adult this little girl has, so he has to figure out how to be a grownup-right now. He's going to need some help. Can he find someone willing to babysit on his brother's remote ranch-turned-goat-rescue? This is the weirdest job offer ever. Bella is willing. She's a college student who needs the income. But the second she meets Kash and Polly, it becomes about more than the money. In fact, she has to keep reminding herself that Kash can't be trusted. He's left a trail of broken hearts all over town, and the more time Bella spends with him, the more she worries about hers. If she can't keep herself from falling, will she have to abandon Polly? Kash needs to convince her that he really has changed-for good. (This standalone sweet romance is Book 2 in the Bridge Brothers' Ranch Series.)

A Sweet Surprise

The world as we knew it came to a sudden end. It was a shock to everyone. One day everything was normal, and the next, chaos ensued. It was a disaster that nobody could have predicted, and everyone was left to fend for themselves. The world had become a dangerous place, and survival was the only goal. For the survivors, the new world was brutal, unforgiving, and dangerous. The once bustling cities had become ghost towns, and the few remaining people struggled to find food and shelter. The basic necessities of life were now a luxury, and everyone was in a constant state of fear. In the midst of all this chaos, there was one person who stood out. Her name was Sarah, and she had managed to survive on her own for months. She was smart, resourceful, and tough. She had learned to adapt to the new world and had become an expert in scavenging and hunting. She was a survivor in every sense of the word. Despite all the hardships she faced, Sarah never lost hope. She believed that there was still goodness in the world, and that one day things would get better. It was this unwavering optimism that kept her going, even in the darkest of times. One day, Sarah was out scavenging for supplies when she stumbled upon a small bakery. It was a miracle that it was still standing, but it was clear that the owner had long since abandoned it. However, Sarah could smell something sweet coming from inside, and her curiosity got the better of her. She cautiously approached the door and peered inside. What she saw brought tears to her eyes. Inside the bakery was a cake. It was a beautiful cake, with pink frosting and little white flowers on top. It looked like it had been made with love, and Sarah couldn't believe her luck. She had never seen a cake before, let alone tasted one. It was a sweet surprise in the midst of all the chaos, and Sarah felt a glimmer of hope in her heart. For a moment, Sarah hesitated. She knew that taking the cake was risky. She didn't know who had made it, or what kind of person they were. But the temptation was too great, and she couldn't resist. She carefully picked up the cake and cradled it in her arms. It was surprisingly heavy, and Sarah knew that it must have been a special occasion cake. She wondered who it was meant for. As Sarah made her way back to her hiding place, she couldn't help but feel a sense of guilt. She had taken something that wasn't hers, and she didn't know if it was the right thing to do. But as she sat down and took a bite of the cake, all her doubts vanished. It was the most delicious thing she had ever tasted, and it made her feel like she was part of the old world again. The sweetness of the cake filled her with a warmth that she hadn't felt in a long time. Over the next few days, Sarah found herself thinking about the cake more and more. It had been a small but significant moment of kindness in the midst of all the chaos. She wondered who had made it and what kind of person they were. She knew that the world was full of good people, but she had never experienced it firsthand. The cake had given her a taste of what the old world used to be like, and it had filled her with a sense of hope. Days turned into weeks, and Sarah continued to survive in the new world. She hunted, scavenged, and did whatever it took to stay alive. But the memory of the cake stayed with her, and she knew that she would never forget it.
