when we classify living things, we sort them into groups each group's called a kingdom, and there are five for us to choose.

If something has one cell Like the bacteria of a cold

If it's unicellular, In the Monera kingdom it must go.

If it's more complex Like an amoeba in a pond

Unicellular or multicellular, In the Protist Kingdom it belongs.

If it's a decomposer, In the fungus Kingdom it must be.

If it photosynthesises Like a plant with leaves and roots

The Plant Kingdom we must choose.

If it's multicellular The animal Kingdom is its place.
