In this video, discover the main steps in preparing ...

There are two main reasons for preparing the surface of composites.

So, there may be contaminants on the surface of the composite

And for some types of release agent, we may also use a water-based detergent to remove it.

Abrasion by sanding is a simple treatment to roughen the surface

But care must be taken to avoid damaging the underlying composite fibers.

It's critical that any abrasion treatment is followed by thorough dust removal and is then followed by a further degreasing step prior to bonding.

Use of a peel ply offers a consistent and efficient surface preparation for bonding thermoset composites.

So, when you're selecting the surface preparation for a composite part it's important to think about the type of fixture that you're going to be bonding.

CONCLUSIONS

Transmitters for Radar and Wireless communication systems require high RF output powers, of the order of 100's or 1000's of Watts

Solid State Microwave Transistors

Instantaneous Operation

Graceful Degradation

Why do lower bias voltages limit amplifier performance?

High capacitance and low impedance limit the operating frequency

Majority carrier devices based on n-type semiconductors

Advantages of Modulation Doping

Free carrier concentration increase without significant dopant impurities

Good electron confinement within 2 Dimensional Electron Gas (2DEG)

PROS

during fabrication

Reliability and reproducibility

Relatively Immature Technology

Negative charge on the surface leads to extension of the gate depletion region
The potential on the second gate (Virtual Gate), is controlled by the total amount of trapped charge in the gate drain access region
Drain Current transients
Surface passivation
Improved crystal purity and fabrication processes
UV Light illumination
This may lead to gate breakdown and limits the maximum drain voltage
Commercial Availability
Wide bandgap semiconductors, such as SiC and GaN, can potentially offer an order of magnitude improved RF output power compared to traditional devices
