#geriatric mental health #functional psychiatric disorders #elderly psychological conditions #mental health in older adults #aging population psychiatric care

Functional psychiatric disorders in the elderly encompass a range of mental health conditions that arise in older adults, distinct from those primarily caused by organic brain disease. These challenges, common within the aging population, include conditions like late-life depression, anxiety disorders, and certain psychoses, significantly impacting the well-being and daily functioning of individuals. Understanding these specific geriatric mental health issues is crucial for effective diagnosis and tailored support.
