Leila, Or, The Siege of Granada

In 'Leila or, the Siege of Granada', readers are transported to the summer of 1491, where the armies of Ferdinand and Isabel are laying siege to the city of Granada. Amidst the chaos, a mysterious figure named Almamen, known for his alleged enchanting powers, wanders the streets and makes his way to the fortress of the Alhambra. There, he meets Muza, a proud and imposing warrior, and their exchange sets the stage for a tale of love, war, and intrigue. Baron Edward Bulwer Lytton Lytton's writing paints a vivid picture of Andalusia, complete with moonlit fountains and snow-capped mountains, and brings to life a cast of characters who will captivate readers until the final page.

Leila or, the Siege of Granada, Book IV

It was the summer of the year 1491, and the armies of Ferdinand and Isabel invested the city of Granada. The night was not far advanced; and the moon, which broke through the transparent air of Andalusia, shone calmly over the immense and murmuring encampment of the Spanish foe, and touched with a hazy light the snow-capped summits of the Sierra Nevada, contrasting the verdure and luxuriance which no devastation of man could utterly sweep from the beautiful vale below.

Leila Or, the Siege of Granada, Book V.

The music ceased; the dancers remained motionless in their graceful postures, as if arrested into statues of alabaster; and the young songstress cast herself on a cushion at the feet of the monarch and looked up fondly, silently, into his yet melancholy eyes, -when a man, whose entrance had not been noticed, was seen to stand within the chamber
