Interpersonal Skills in Practice - Interpersonal Skills in Practice by GreggU 184 views 2 years ago 2 minutes, 37 seconds - To successfully lead an organization, toward change, a leader needs to be sensitive to how her or his own ideas fit in with others' ...

PERCEPTIVENESS Social perceptiveness includes having insight into and awareness of what is important to others, how they are motivated, the problems they face, and how they react to change.

CHANGE Leadership is about change, and people in organizations often resist change because they like things to stay the same.

UNDERSTANDING A leader who is socially perceptive can create change more effectively if they understand how the proposed change may affect all the people involved.

EMOTIONS Another important skill for a leader is being able to show emotional intelligence. Emotional intelligence is concerned with a person's ability to understand their own and others' emotions, and then to apply this understanding to life's tasks.

LEADERS The underlying premise of research on emotional Intelligence is that people who are sensitive to their own emotions and the impact their emotions have on others will be more effective leaders.

REGULATION Third, a leader needs to learn how to regulate his or her emotions and put them to good use. Whenever a leader makes a substantial decision, the leader's emotions are involved. Emotions in the workplace are contagious.

GUIDE The leader acts as the group's emotional guide. When a leader is sensitive to others and manages their own emotions appropriately, that leader increases the chances that the group's decisions will be effective.
